The Monefeldt family

DESCENDANT'S OF MARTIN JAGEMANN MONEFELDT

In 1990 my information about the Monefeldt family was collected into a book, in which beside numerous overviewtables also different references of the people involved persons and their living places were included.

Samples of the book have been sent to interested family members. Furthermore the book can be found at:

Det Kongelige Bibliotek ( The Royal Library ), Copenhagen

Landsarkivet for Sjaelland, Lolland-Falster and Bornholm
( Country files for the mentioned countrysides ), Copenhagen

Rigsarkivet, Copenhagen

Frederiksberg Kommunes Biblioteker, ( Library ), Frederiksberg

Kongresbiblioteket ( Library of Congress ), U.S.

This book is only in a Danish version, and in the present form it is not suitable for translation.

In consideration of family members living in Puerto Rico and U.S., this present publication is available. It is organized and styled in a new way, with the only goal of making it more accessible and interesting.

The book seldom mentions relatives who does not carry the name Monefeldt. As such there may exist many now living who have a Monefeldt in their line of ancestors.

Existing today are only descendants with the family name Monefeldt after the Danish founder of the family:

12th. child: Jens Monefeldt ( 1748 - 1788 ), and 13th. child: Daniel Walcher Monefeldt ( 1749 - 1804 )

The book shows, with use of tables, the propagation of the Monefeldtname and the family members interrelations. With comments given, it also shows a little about the prosperity for the family through time.

As the book looks today it is not complete, but contains so much knowledge that further new information with fairly high precision can be added.

Data used in this book is from only a few people, based upon their own research. However, the information is very accurate, since the sources were church books and records from public archives. archives.

For practical reason the table of the family is divided in 10 tables. A total overview can be obtained by putting them together as shown in table one.

After each table follows information and data about the mentioned persons.

ORIGIN OF THE MONEFELDTS

This family book is a prosterity story which covers the descendants of the founder of the Monefeldt family in Denmark:

M A R T I N   J A G E M A N N   M O N E F E L D T   1700 - 1769

It is naturally not out of interest to know who he was and where he came from. Members of the family have through time wished to know his origin . It has been commonly accepted that Martin Jagemann Monefeldt was German, but exact information of origin and the first time in Denmark has been lost in the first generations.

Later on the question of origin has been answered by guesses and suppositions. This has very likely added to make the story more dramatic and interesting than the true story may be.

Through my research work I encountered three statements from three independent sources:

August Jagemann Holm ( 1800 - 1881 )

great-grandchild of Martin Jagemann Monefeldt, states in his family book in 1854:

'My ancestor on mothers side was Bernowsky, who fled from Siebenburgen because of religious strife to Denmark and took the name Monefeldt.'

Julius Monefeldt, Bruxelles, Belgium ( 1862 - 1941 ), great-great-grandchild of Martin Jagemann Monefeldt, states in his memoirs:

'there were three brothers who had run from the country. The one stayed by the border, the remaining two went to Denmark and the one went on to Norway.'

Karen Camilla Jensen, born Monefeldt ( 1908 - 1971 ), whose grandfather was a 15 year older brother to Julius in Belgium said:

'My father, Peter Gustav, died when I was about ten years old. He told me that there was a father and two sons, who had run away for Denmark. They came from Latvia ( the Baltics ) through Sweden and were barons.'

There is probably some truth in these three statements. It is possible that there have been one or two beside the founder, who had come to Denmark. Have noted two Monefeldts/Monfeldts, whose relationship to the remaining is unknown:

Martin Monefeldt ( 1750 - 1784 ),

butchers assistant, unmarried, lived in Copenhagen

Christian Monfeldt ( about 1762 - ? ), bakers assistant, unmarried, lived in Helsingor

All others with the name Monefeldt are confirmed related to Martin Jagemann Monefeldt.

That Martin Jagemann Monefeldt should have fled because of a religious strife is imaginable, but the talk of barons is to my best knowledge wishful thinking.

It is more likely that Martin Jagemann Monefeldt as a young man, perhaps as one of a large family of children, looked for a future in Denmark, as many other Germans did at that time.

He probably did not go without a destination, but had friends or friends of the family, who he could contact in Denmark.

The first public information about the founder comes from the Ulse-Freerslev Church book:

Page 185: Best man attest - Martin Monefeldt, born in Hessen-Cassel, to mademoiselle Else Maria Harring.
Attest of December 8, 1729

Page 312: Married December 9, 1729 Bachelor Martin Monefeldt and Else Maria Harring.
Best man for Martin Monefeldt was L. Grandjean and for Else Maria Harring her father Albrecht Harring.

From another source it is known that Martin Monefeldt was born in or about 1700 and that he was of the Reformed religion.

ULSE church is nearby the ESTATE OF GISSELFELD. Best man for Else Maria ( her father ) was herb gardener at the nearby ESTATE OF BREGENTVED. Ludvig Grandjean seems to be a miller and one source tells that the Grandjean family was interested in the German Reformed Church.

( Ulse/Gisselfeld/Bregentved is situated approx. 50 kilometers south of Copenhagen )

Beside the two best men there was another interesting person in this neighbourhood: JOHAN RICHARDT.

In the year of 1714 he was hired as hunter and table servant at Gisselfeld - retired in 1735.

Johan Richardt too was born in Hessen-Cassel, likely approx. 1660-70 and was of the reformed religion. His father was hunt- and forest officer at the court of Hessen-Cassel.

About Johan Richardt it was told that he came to Denmark in the late 1600s together with other German hunters, as there was a war going on between Denmark and Sweden.

When Martin Jagemann Monefeldt got married in the church of Ulse, he was 29 years old, and it is likely that he had been in Denmark for some years before the marriage.

The relationship between the Richardt and Monefeldt families is confirmed through the fact that two grandchildren of Johan Richardt are married to two grandchildren of Martin Jagemann Monefeldt. I'm sure this relationship goes back to Hessen-Cassel. Hereby it is clear why Martin Jagemann Monefeldt came from Germany to exactly this location.

There have been attempts through German archives, and genealogical societies to find Martin Jagemann Monefeldts place of birth and parents in Hessen-Cassel, but without success.

Maybe there is a hint many years later. In 1754 where Martin Jagemann Monefeldt is forest manager at Valloe, he got a hunter with the name Mantzius, who married one daughter of Martin in 1757. In 1755 Johan Mantzius received authorization to go to Neukirchen in the estate Ziegenhagen under Hessen-Cassel. Neukirchen is situated 50 kilometers south of the city of Kassel.

THE FIRST YEARS IN DENMARK

From marriage in 1729 in the church of Ulse until 1740, where Martin Jagemann Monefeldt became forest manager at Valloe, no information has been found. When his son Augustus was confirmed in the church of Lellinge in 1747 it was told that he was born in FUGLEBJERG ( in south Sjaelland ).

The church book of Fuglebjerg parish for this period was lost in a fire, so no information is available from here.

In Fuglebjerg parish there are two big farms, Fuglebjerggaard and Kastrup. Fuglebjerggaard only has a little forest, but Kastrup has a large one.

Therefore it is assumed that Martin Jagemann Monefeldt in the years 1729 to 1740 was a hunter at Kastrup.

Fuglebjerggaard and Kastrup were in the years from 1722 to 1803 owned by the family Plessen. Von Plessen was of Mechlenburg ( German ) aristocracy, and came to Denmark in the 17th century. Several of the family members had influential positions at the royal Danish court.

Geheimeraad V.C. von Plessen was prefect of the diocese Valloe and had supervision of the forestry there. It is likely that he placed a person he knew from the family estate as forest manager in a vacant post at Valloe.

Letters from forest manager Martin Monefeldt and his son Augustus Monefeldt, who became forest manager in another forest under Valloe, were sent to:

Your Excellency
Highness
Victor Christian von Plessen, Knight

At that time it was common to name a child after a person in gratitude, and this is probably the case when Martin Jagemann Monefeldt in 1745 christened one son with the name VICTOR CHRISTIAN MONEFELDT.

ELSE MARIA HARRING born about 1710, 19 years at marriage, was the daughter of Albrecht Harring, herb gardener at Bregentved.

Else Maria had a little sister, Maria Christiana, who married the parish clerk ESKILD HOLM - his first wife.

In his second marriage Eskild Holm had a son, Hans Skade Holm, who married Juliane Marie Monefeldt, daughter of Martin Monefeldt's son Augustus. Strong family ties were affiliated between the Monefeldt and the Holm which lasts until sometime into the 19th century.

When Martin Jagemann Monefeldt and Else Maria Harring in 1740 went from Fuglebjerg to the official residence as forest manager, LELLINGE FOREST RESIDENCE, they had 6 children, probably all christened in the church of Fuglebjerg. They get 10 more children, christened in church of Lellinge, 5 kilometers west of Koege. One child died at age of eleven and one after two weeks, but despite this it is quite a start of a family.

Through the church book we get a look at the social circles of the family. As godfathers to the children christened in Lellinge are found tenants, prefects, judges, colonels, lady's maid from Valloe castle and the like.

The correspondence between von Plessen and the forest manager, show that Martin Jagemann Monefeldt was well educated. This is also confirmed by the following from a book by I.P. Rohde: 'Samlinger til Haderslev Amts historie og Beskrivelse', which tells that Astrup parish by Haderslev in 1762 got a new priest by the name of Jacob Bondesen. He was born in 1732 in Copenhagen and went to school there until 1746. He finished his Academy in 1749 and read at the University until he took study sessions with forest manager Monefeldt.

THE DIOCESE OF VALLOE

In the year of 1731 the Danish king, Christian the Sixth, gave Valloe Castle to his queen Sophie Magdalene, who in 1737 made over the estate to a diocese/foundation for aristocratic unmarried women. As benefit to the cloisters it was named a diocese ( Danish: stift ) and it was settled that there should be an aristocratic originated 'abbedisse' and a 'decanesse' who should be original count. The foundation is from May 14th. 1738. Only persons from the Danish aristocracy could live at the diocese.

Sophie Magdalene, born 1700, was the daughter of Count Christian Henrik of Brandenburg-Culmbach and Sophie Christiane, Countess of Wolfstein.

In the book ' Valloe og Omegn' ( Valloe and surroundings ) by Anders Petersen is said:

'The influence from Sophie Magdalene was not positive, as she not only spent hugh amounts of money on fun and fancy ideas, but hard german as she was from the heart, she drew poor Germans and gave them great positions. Never before had the German felt so good in Denmark. The king spoke and wrote only German, and the queen went so far as to insult her only son as 'der danische Prints', because he favored the Danish language. Furthermore her pride contributed to draw the shy and unsocial king away from the people. At court she introduced a stiff language and everything got a distant half oriental atmosphere.

A stranger who did not know the explanation and came here would never guess this was a Danish court. Despite the king and the royal children there was not one who could speak Danish. The queen filled every position with Germans - this included the cooks, the maids and midwives.'

FOREST MANAGER MARTIN JAGEMANN MONEFELDT - LELLINGE FORESTRY

Following the highway from Copenhagen in a southern direction one finds south of Koege a forest which belongs to Valloe diocese.

In 1740 the Valloe forest included 5000 acres. It was divided into two districts and each had a forest manager who again had a couple of forest rangers to manage the forestindustry.

Martin Jagemann Monefeldt became forest manager of the Lellinge district. Taking over the post and moving into the Lellinge Forest House took place in the end of 1740 or beginning of 1741. His commission as forest manager is dated July 13th 1741.

At that time the king owned nearly all the forest in the kingdom of Denmark. His interests in the forests was protected by royal appointed forest managers ( Danish: skovrider, skov=forest, ruder=knight which is a sort a hallmark ). This title is used even now though the forests have for many years been state owned.

To be royal forest manager gave authority and prestige. For Valloe it was a little special as the forests belonged to the Queen and not the king. Therefore they did not use the name Royal Forest manager and as such not mentioned in the register of Royal Danish Forest officials.

However, the commission given forestmanagers of Valloe used the same wording as the Royal ones. The commission of Martin Jagemann Monefeldt is signed on behalf of the Queen by crown prince Frederik, the later king Frederik the 5th. ( 1723 - 1766 ).

At that time the forest managers responsibilities were heavy on maintaining the game and hunting, but at the same time they took care that loose creatures did not damage the wood. The business of the forest is maintained by forest rangers who, under supervision of the forest managers, maintain the felling of wood for timber.

An important part of the responsibility at that time was to prevent poaching in the Royal hunting areas ( 'Royal Wildbanen' ). If it was impossible to catch the poacher, the forest manager had authority to shoot him - without any trial or punishment.

According to his commission Martin Jagemann Monefeldt received a yearly payment of 66 Rigsdaler ( Rigsdaler was the monetary standard of that time ) of which 50 came from the Queen and remaining direct from the diocese of Valloe. Above this he received Lellinge Forest House as his official residence and an enclosed field on which he could do farming for his own benefit.

Lellinge Forest House still exists in the village of Lellinge 5 kilometers of from the city Koege. When Martin Jagemann Monefeldt moved in with wife and six children, the circumstances were in a mess. The water well had to be repaired, as well as the shutters of the house. Furthermore the house was expanded, for which purpose he requested the diocese for 89 Rigsdaler and in return he would get some oaktree from the forest.

Martin Jagemann Monefeldt died in 1769 and was buried in Lellinge. At this time his son Augustus was forest manager in the other forest belonging to Valloe and lives in the forest house Brandshuus.

In Lellinge Martin was succeeded by his son Gerhardt Christian Monefeldt. Widow of Martin, Else Maria Harring, stayed in the forest house.

In a memorial document for Valloe written in 1888, page 28 includes a statement from count Holstein given to Queen Caroline Mathilde in 1771 ( this is translated from German to Danish and now to english| ):

'In the instrument of foundation it is not mentionend that a widow from an official shall have any pension. However the widow Monefeldt has received 45 rigsdaler and 16 skilling, 5 truck loads of hay and 5 of straw, as well as firewood. Two of her sons are forest managers in the district and she could live with them. The remaining children are grown up. I see this as reasonable to reduce her pension to 30 Rigsdaler.'

The Queen answers to this:

'It is correct that the foundation includes nothing regarding pension. In consideration of the widow's husbands many years of service, together with bad circumstances and many children, the Queen has decided the pension of 45 Rigsdaler and 16 skilling.

Given by resolution of June 15th. 1765 and once again this time in August 1769.'

Else Maria Harring survived her husband for many years. She died in 1793, 83 years old and was buried on September 21, 1793 in Lellinge.

As mentioned, Martin Jagemann Monefeldt and Else Maria Harring had 16 children in their marriage - 9 boys and 7 girls.

Two of the sons had positions as forest managers under Valloe and a third was forest manager at Christiansholm - at our time named Aalholm - situated on the isle of Lolland by Nysted.

More of the remaining sons had a trading education, probably as grocers in Koege. The girls did not get any formal education - it was a question of being properly married.

DESCENDANTS OF MARTIN JAGEMANN MONEFELDT AND ELSE MARIA HARRING

There was an administration of the estate after Else Maria Harring in Lellinge Forest House, who after royal permission September 1, 1758 retained undivided possession in the estate. As common practice at that time an auction of the properties was held and gave 540 Rigsdaler - the debt was 161 Rigsdaler.

There was a document written by Else Maria Harring in which she noted gifts given to the children through times so that they all at her death could align the inheritance.

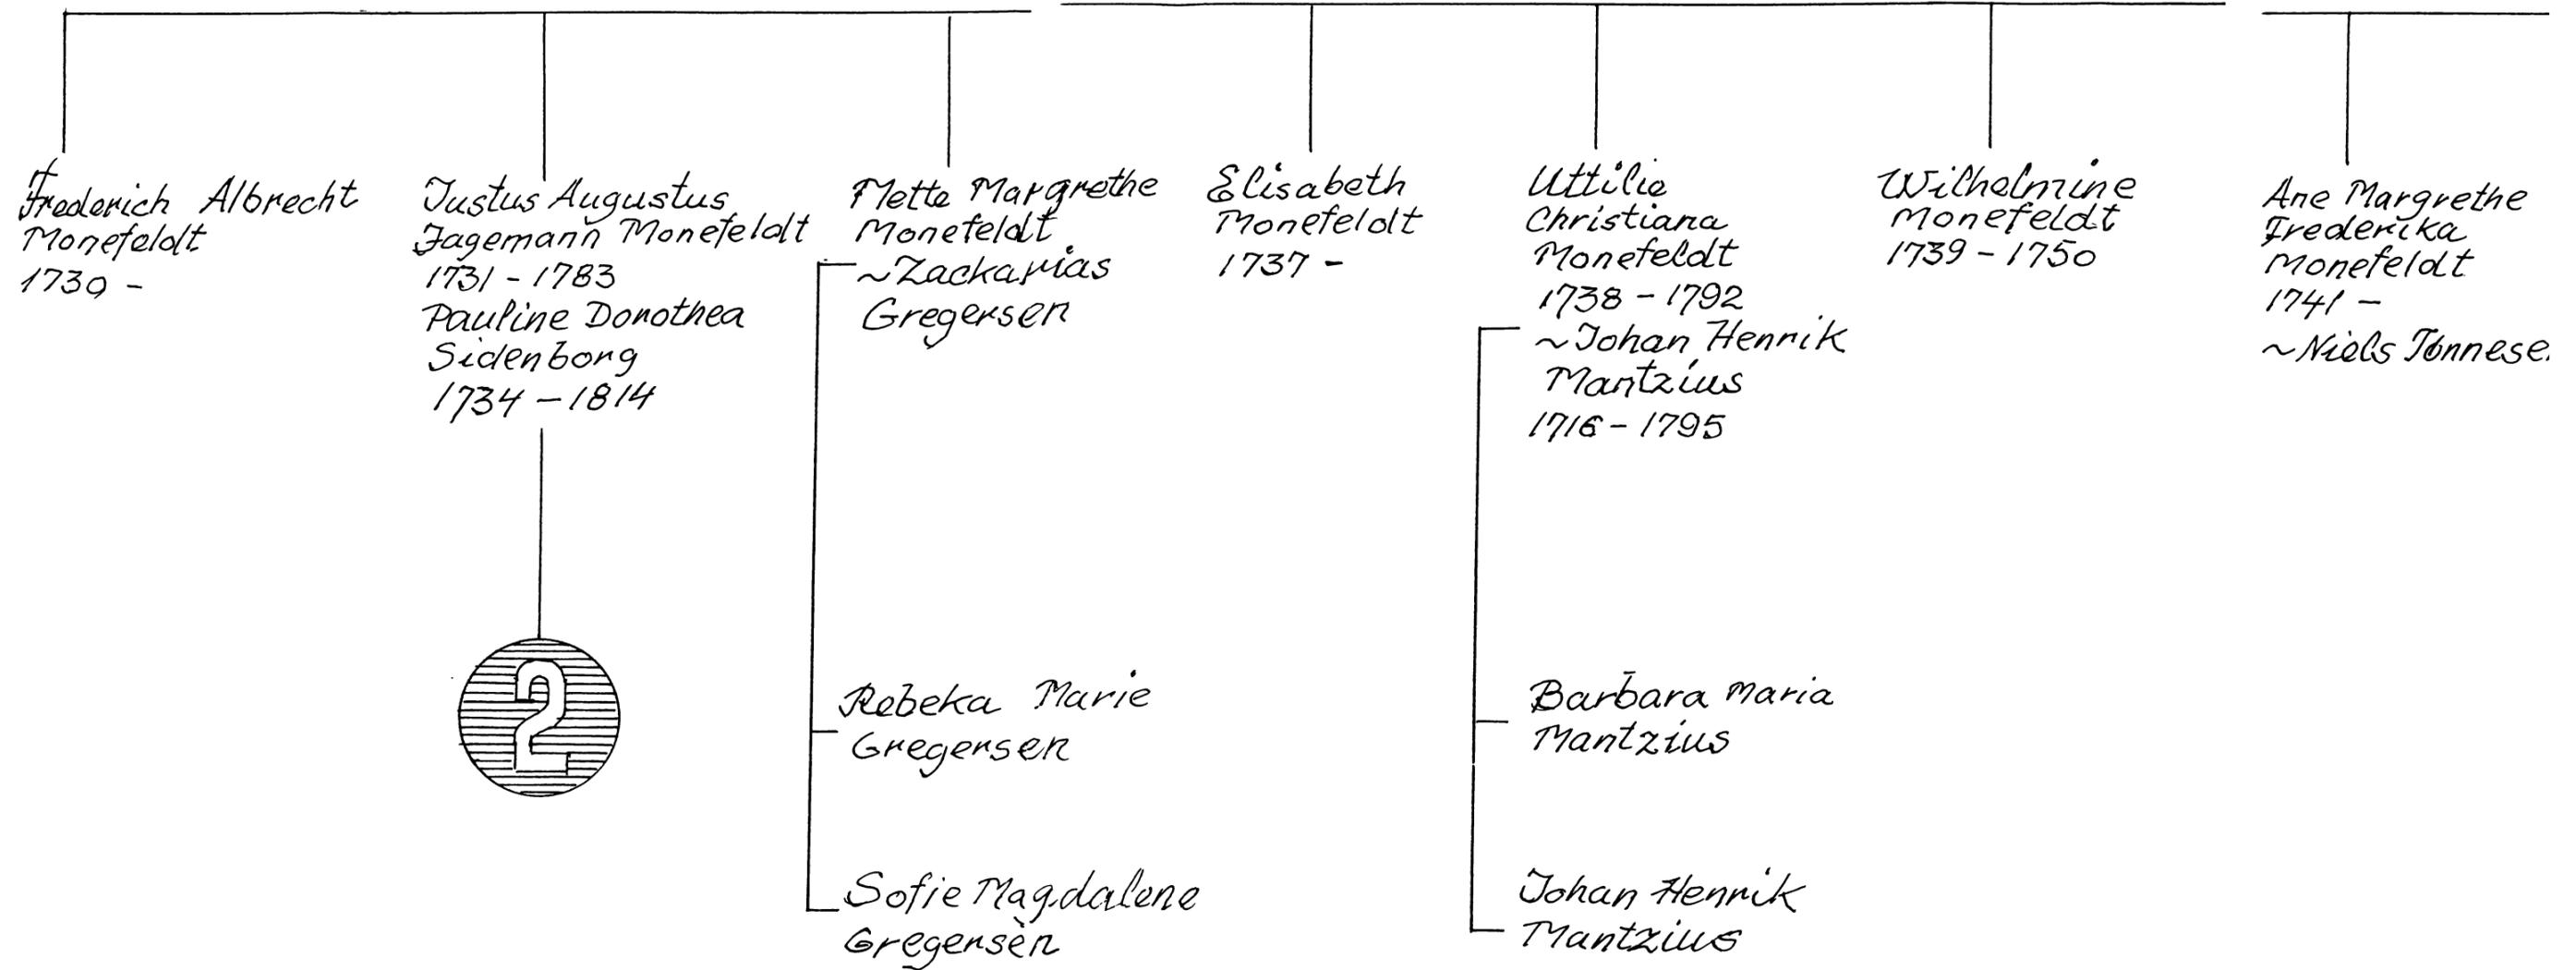

The information given in this document was acknowledged by the children, but the judge could not approve the document according to the law. Therefore the inheritance was divided according to dictate of the law.

Forest manager Gerhardt Monefeldt asked for compensation of 80 Rigsdaler as payment for the funeral of the mother. This could not be accepted by grocer Daniel Walcher Monefeldt in Praestoe and forest manager Victor Christian Monefeldt at Christiansholm. They found 47 Rigsdaler more appropriate.

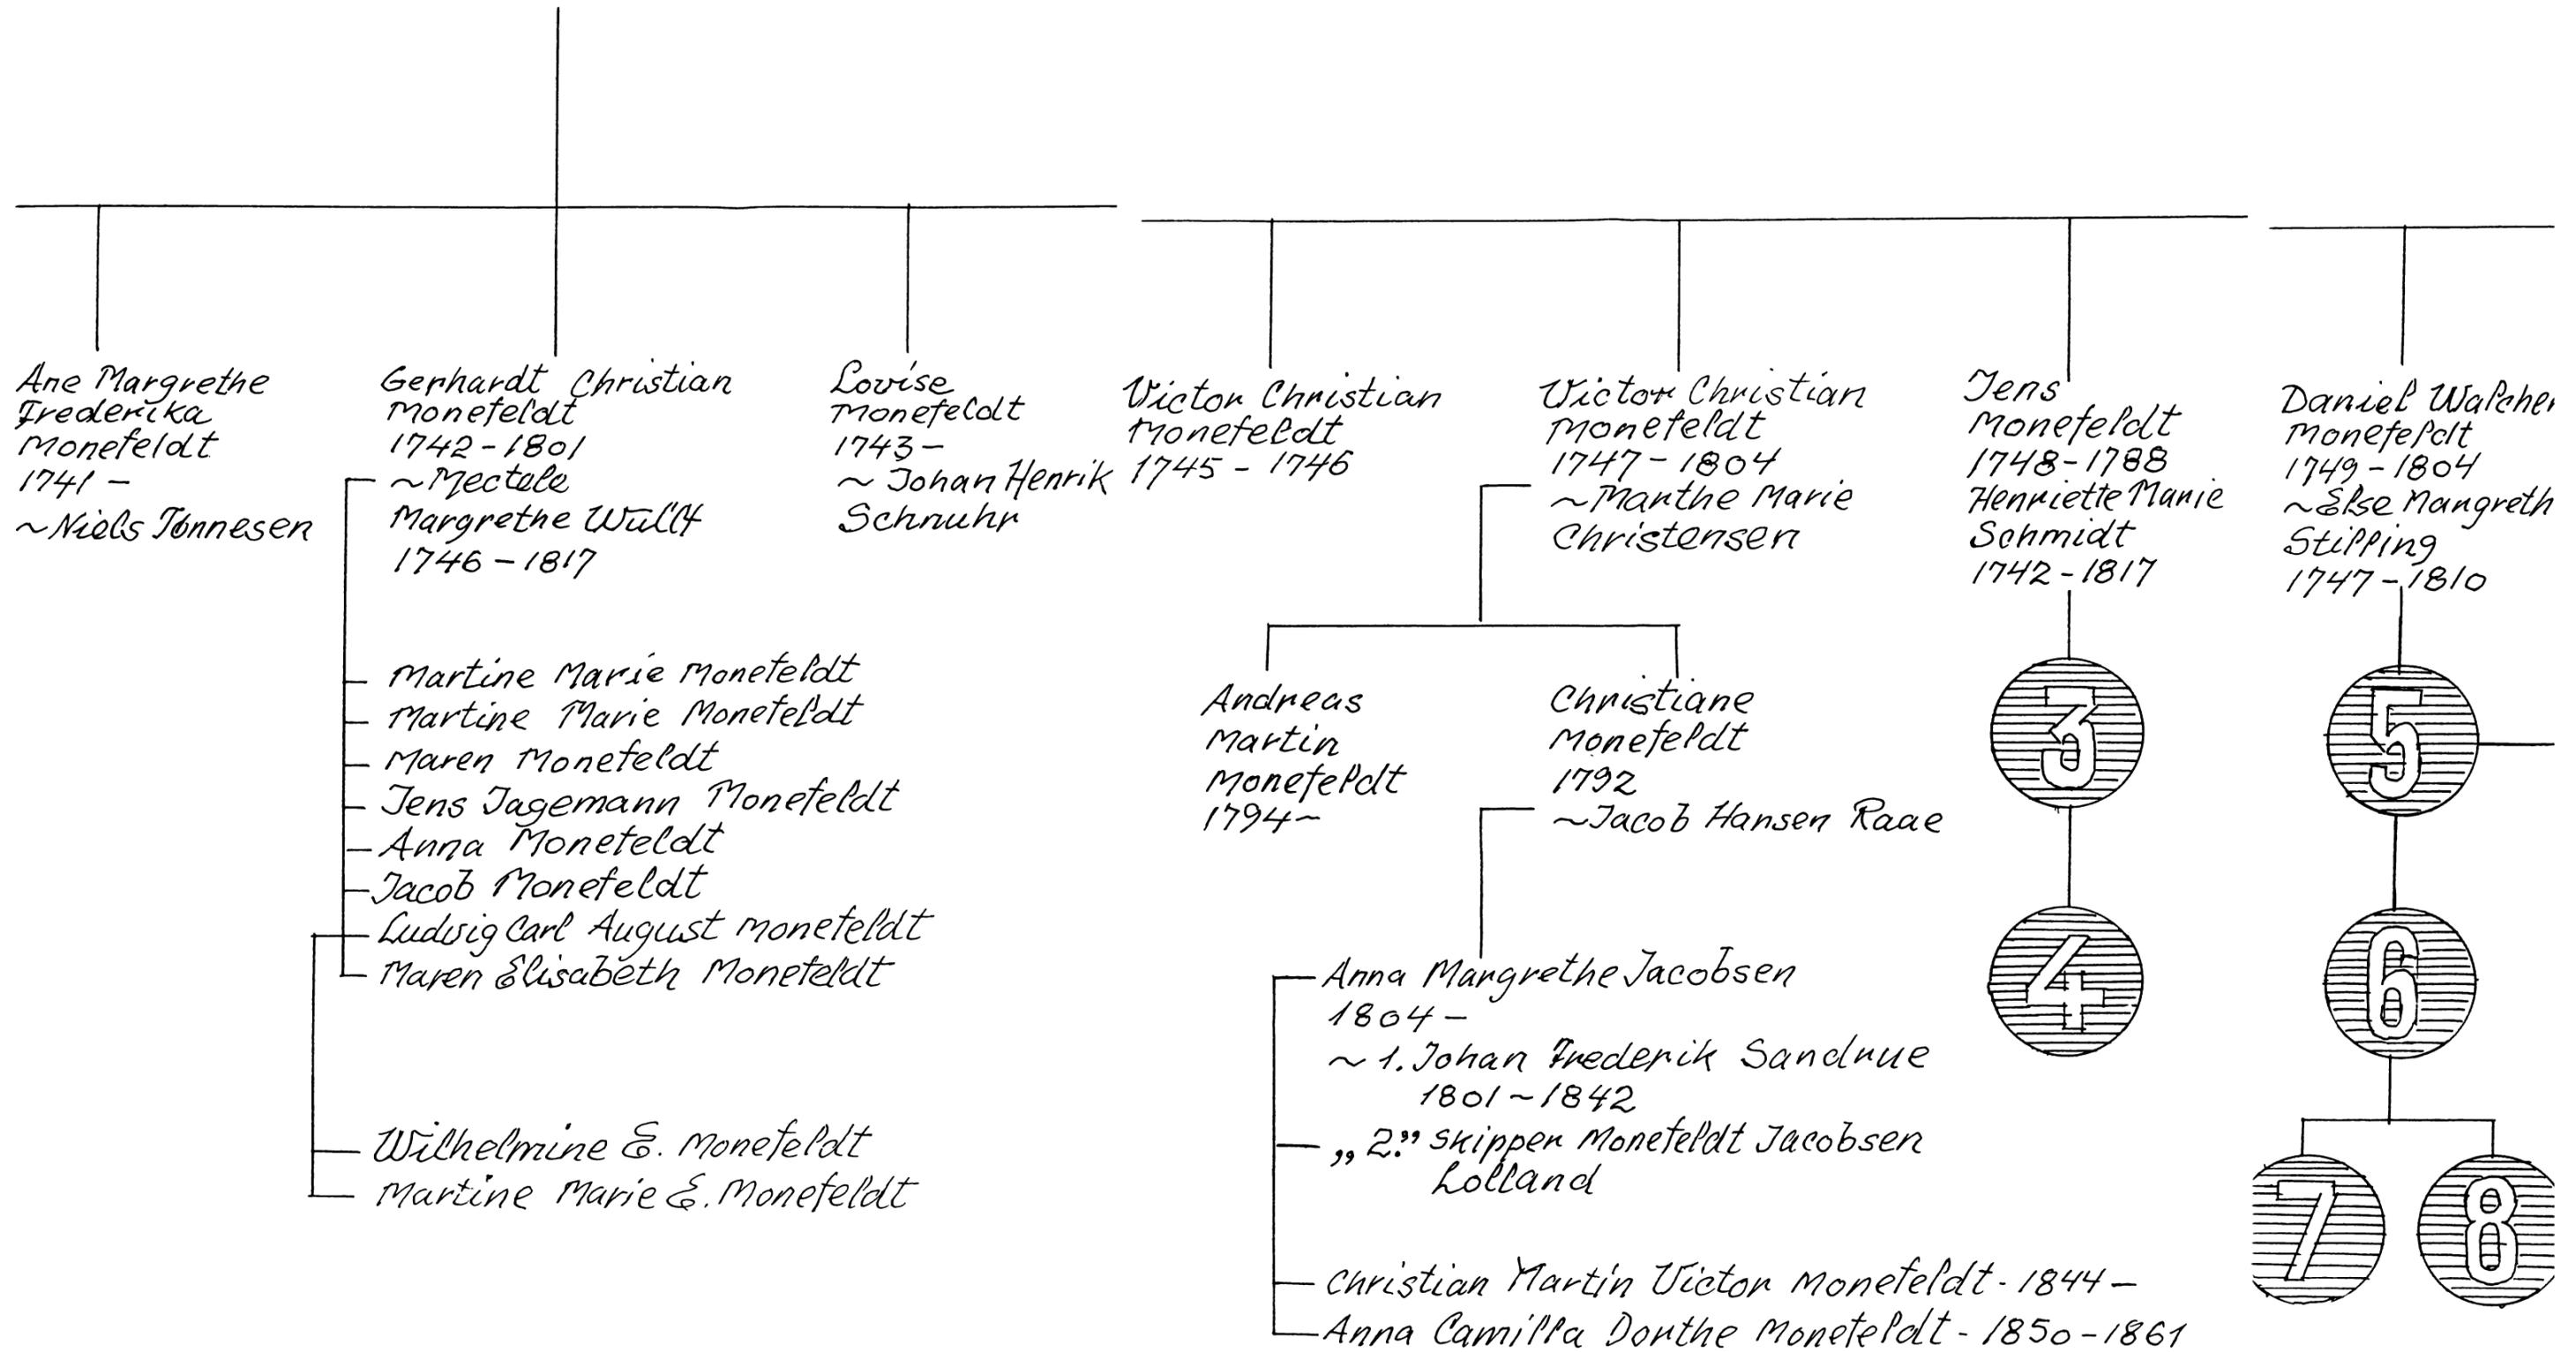

The court found it right that something could have been saved and ruled payment to Gerhardt Monefeldt at 65 Rigsdaler.

Final settlement of the possession was 333 Rigsdaler which was divided among the children.

MARTIN JAGEMANN MONEFELDT was born in Hessen-Cassel, Germany, probably in the area of Neukirchen in the count's estate of Ziegenhagen, approx. 50 kilometers south of the city of Kassel.

ELSE MARIA HARRING was a daughter of herbgardener at Bregentved, Albrecht Harring.

In the years 1729 - 1740, the family lived in Fuglebjerg. From 1740 Martin Jagemann Monefeldt was forest manager at Valloe, and the family lived at the Lellinge forest residence.

FREDERICH ALBRECHT MONEFELDT

Birth around 1730 - probably in Fuglebjerg.

He was the first of Martin Jagemann Monefeldt and E'se Maria Harring's children. After that time's custom he probably got the name from his father's father. Albrecht is from his mother's father.

No information has been found of Frederich Albrecht.

At the time of his mother's death it must have been assumed that he must be still alive - 64 years old in 1794 - as he was assigned a part but with the note: 'residence unknown'

Already in 1751, at age 20 years he was mentioned as principal at Bjaeverskov Legacy school situated not far from Lellinge.

The post as principal was held only for a few years, as he at age 22 on April 1st 1753, was positioned as forest manager at Valloe. In Bjaeverskov he fell in love with the daughter of the priest Hans Hansen Sidenborg: Pauline.

To the forestry belonged the forest house Brandshuus, which burned in 1909. It was situated approx. 4 kilometers south of Koege.

---

Shortly after moving into the foresthouse, Augustus sent a letter to his superior, von Plessen:

Your Excellency
Highness
Geheimeraad and Knight
Gracious

In deep servility I am forced to draw your excellences attention to the great need I have for some timber, as I as a young man have only little, yes in fact nothing to begin with, as I am only looking for the best for the forest, just to fulfill the wishes of your Excellency.

In that respect I lay my pray in the grace of your Excellency, as I am at your service day and night - most of the time by foot - your Excellency will let me have some timber for a carriage to make life easier for my tired body.

This is only half of my pray, of which the biggest part is left. A thing to relieve the thirst of both man and creature. There is no water well at the forest house, and an official must take special care of his superiors well of from where he brings water. Your Excellency must apologize that I make such intruding request'

In deepest respect yours Augustus Monefeldt
( poor translation of old Danish wording )

It was not modesty that dominated the coming activities of Augustus in his forest management which is clearly seen in the correspondence from he and his father in the archives of Valloe.

Augustus Jagemann Monefeldt was suspended from his position in 1778 because of mismanagement against the Royal act of hunting and judged a heavy fine of 1520 Rigsdaler. The royal supervisor, however, wrote that even though the act of Monefeldt was critical, it was inevitable following the circumstances in which he was set, and made it necessary to seek alternative income. Therefore, his recommendation was to give better payment to the forest managers. By order from the Queen the fine was remitted in 1779 and a little later he was repositioned as forest manager.

Five years later Augustus died at the age of only 52, after 30 years as forest manager. There was a big administration of the estate from which it is seen that his possessions weren't as poor as described in the earlier documents.

The forest house was a four wing building, and listing of the house contents alone took ten pages. Quite nice in respect that Augustus stated that he had nothing to begin with.

Belonging to the forest house there was a small farm housing a farmer, a farmhand and maid, beside grown up daughters living there of which, one was engaged to the employed hunter, Gotthard August RICHARDT.

In the cart shed there were - among other things - one old and one new green painted mail wagon with yellow mail basket, from which we must conclude that mail delivery were among the activities.

In the stables there were 8 horses, 11 sheep, 3 lambs and 136 pigs, but no cows.

Above the regular payment there may have been other sorts of income - among these shootingmoney as payment for hunting activities. The hunter got a wage of 24 Rigsdaler and part of the shooting money.

There were also considerable outstanding debts covering services as well as delivered goods. It is also clear from the administration of the estate that Augustus had debts to business connections, family and friends.

From grocer bills it is seen that his living standard was quite high. Hugh portions of sugar, candy, tobacco, coffee and brandy were bought.

The total debt summed up to 830 Rigsdaler, but despite this a small sum was divided between the widow and the children.

Johan Henrik Mantzius was the Royal forest manager in Odsherred, ( the Northwest part of Sjaelland ) from 1757. Before 1757 he was hunter with Martin Jagemann Monefeldt in Lellinge.

Mantzius was permitted to leave Hessen-Cassel ( his homeland ) in 1748 by field marshall Schulenburg. After a few years of service to Schulenburg, Mantzius became assistant to Monefeldt in Lellinge. In February 1757 he became as forest manager and May 27, the same year he married the daughter of his superior in Church of Lellinge.

In the Archives of Valloe is found:

In the estate Ziegenhagen under Hessen-Cassel.

The forest house 'Mantzhoej' in parish of Egebjerg in Odsherred is named after Johan Henrik Mantzius.

The forest house situated there now is not the original one, but parts of the old one have been used in the building standing there now - one of the most picturesque in Denmark.

At the entrance two stones show the name of king Christian the 8th, and the year 1778.

The Gille Mill was taken over May 21, 1774 by Peter Toennesen who inherited it from his father.

In 1784 he signed a contract with his son Niels Toennesen, that he should take over the mill at that time it suited the father. At this time the son was unmarried.

In 1787 Niels Toennesen owned the mill and was married to Ane Margrethe Frederica Monefeldt - no children.

In 1796 the mill was sold including an inn to a Peder Joergensen for the sum of 10.000 rigsdaler. The deed of conveyance was signed in Fredensborg Witnessed by two good friends of the miller; Jens Tranch Scade and Lorentz Nicolai Fallesen.

The church book in Gilleleje does not begin until 1814. The Danish people were counted in 1801, and at that time there was no family with the Toennesen name in Gilleleje.

The administration of the estate resulted in 74i Rigsdaler, which was divided between the widow and the surviving children.

VICTOR CHRISTIAN MONEFELDT was forest manager at Christiansholm, nowadays called Aalholm on Lolland. His engagement at Christiansholm is undoubtedly linked to the fact that Earl Fr. Raben, Christiansholm was head dispenser for the Diocese of Valloe.

In 1734 the estate of Christiansholm was established by unifying Aalholm, Bramslykke and Egholm. After the death of Earl Christian von Raben in 1750, Christiansholm was passed to his brother geheimeraad Otto Ludvig von Raben, dead 1791.

There was 2.386 acres of forest.

THE FALSE MONEFELDTS

In the story about the Monefeldts in Norway, which can be read elsewhere in this book, it is told about an endowment in Norway, that should be in favor of poor fishermen, and founder of the endowment should be a MONEFELDT.

The information comes from 1928 and many years later, when the work of making the Monefeldt story was started, it became relevant to investigate this further.

A contact to the municipal of Drammen, Norway gave the following answer from a financial member of the municipal of Drammen:

"In this relation we can inform that there in Drammen is an endowment established called:

GEORG MONEFELDT LORENTZENS LEGAT

This endowment is founded by shipowners Thomas Lorentzen ( born December 6, 1829, dead November 14, 1890 ), and James Stove Lorentzen ( born December 7, 1821, dead April 14, 1901 ) in memorial to their departed father, whose name is used for the endowment. According to the informed, he had a shipping company and a shipyard on Stroemsoe in Drammen. He was born December 22, 1788 and died May 24, 1861. According to clauses in the endowment, the dividend should be used as support to survivors of lost sailors who came from Drammen. By January 1, 1960 the fortune was about 14.400 Danish crowns. The endowment is administered by the head of administration at the municipal of Drammen.

This is all the information available to the municipal. However, it is known that in Oslo there is a shipbroker with the name James Stove Lorentzen, who may be related to the above mentioned shipowner, and more information could perhaps be obtained from him. His address is Sophus Lies gt. 4, Oslo."

Drammen, June 10, 1966

An enquiry to James Stove Lorentzen was answered by a need for more time. Unfortunately, he did not respond.

Another enquiry to the State Archives in Oslo was answered by archivist H. Nordby, who informed:

"I have come to the conclusion, that the father of the three shipowners who founded the 'Georg Monefeldt Lorentzens Legat', is named Joergen and not Georg, in spite of the proclamation that the name should be the fathers. This is because I found their christening in the church books for Tangen in Drammen:

1. THOMAS

born December 6, 1829 - ( dead November 14, 1890 )

Parents: Shipmaster Joergen Lorentzen and H. Janne Lorentzen

2. GEORG MONEFELDT LORENTZEN

born June 24, 1831 - ( dead December 17, 1873 )

Parents: Shipmaster Joergen Lorentzen and H. Janne Lorentzen
at Tangen

3. HENRY CAMPBELL

born May 24, 1833 - ( dead June 11, 1891 )

Parents: the same

SHIPOWNER JOERGEN LORENTZEN DEAD MAY 24, 1861 AND WAS BURIED
MAY 30 BY STROEMSOE IN DRAMMEN, 72 1/2 YEARS OLD.

Widow Jane Lorentzen, born Campbell, dead November 26, 1878, 80 1/2 years old. Place of living: Stroemsoe is mentioned in death journal 5 for Drammen with attachment: Left 3 sons who have come of age, namely James Stove Lorentzen, Thomas and Henry Campbell Lorentzen. The estate was taken over by the sons without interference by the court. Nothing to do.

I have not found data on the christening of James Stove Lorentzen, who is assumed to be born December 7, 1821. Nor have I found the date of marriage for the parents, Joergen Lorentzen and Janne Campbell.

I have copied a table from the Delgobe files about the Monefeldts. Here it seems that the father of Joergen Lorentzen is named Thomas Lorentzen, and is clerk at Amager, Denmark. It would be natural to seek his birth there. On the same table you'll find Jane Campbell, who is married to Arthur Stove, probably an earlier marriage.

Conclusion:

1. James Stove Lorentzen ( 1821 - 1901 ) is son of Jane Campbell from her first marriage with Arthur Stove. Later on adopted by Joergen Monefeldt Lorentzen after he married Jane Campbell.
2. The endowment, which should be in memorial to the father, is named after the son, Georg, who died only 51 years old in 1873.

When we here call the Monefeldt Lorentzen family in Norway the 'false' Monefeldts, it should be understood this way, that there is no biological link to the Monefeldt family.

SHIPOWNER JOERGEN MONEFELDT LORENTZEN ( 1788 - 1861 ) is the son of THOMAS LORENTZEN, clerk in St. Magleby on Amager, and:

SARA SMITH

born December 22, 1756

dead November 26, 1790

who according to the census in 1787 is maid employed by JENS MONEFELDT, Copenhagen.

In the year of 1788 - one year before their marriage - Sara and the clerk have a child, who is christened:

JOERGEN MONEFELDT LORENTZEN

They are married September 10, 1789 and in 1790 Sara gave birth to another child:

JENS MONEFELDT LORENTZEN

named after Saras former husband Jens Monefeldt, who died shortly before their sons birth dead on November 2, 1788.

---

Despite the fact that there are no families between the Lorentzens and the Monefeldts, it seems that the families had close relationships. As godfathers at christening of the children were among others:

FREDERIK CARL SMITH, who probably was the father of Sara.

ANDREAS MONEFELDT, who has the brother of Jens Monefeldt.

POUL LORENTZEN, who probably was brother of Thomas Lorentzen. Poul Lorentzen was a wine grocer and his wives name was ELISABETH SMITH ( maybe Sara's sister ). In 1777 they had a child. Jens Monefeldt and Thomas Lorentzen were godfathers at the christening.

The Holm family were also associates of the above families.

Grocer Daniel Walcher Monefeldt in Praestoe must have been trained by grocer Fich in Koege.

In 1781 he married Else Margrethe Stilling, widow of grocer Ole Rasmussen, Praestoe.

Ole Rasmussen, who was approx. 30 years older than his wife, died April 29, 1781 - 63 years old. He was married once before. His first wife was named Anna Cathrine.

Only 7 months after the death of Ole Rasmussen, December 5 the same year the widow married Daniel Walcher Monefeldt, who probably at that time was working in the grocery shop.

Daniel and Else Margrethe were of equal age. 9 month and 6 days after their marriage Else Margrethe gave birth to their twins - a boy and a girl, who was named after the parents of Daniel, Martin and Else Maria.

Two years later in 1783, Daniel's brother Augustus die, only 52 years old. No less than three sons of Augustus arriveds atto the grocershop in Praestoe. First Peter Andreas and Andreas as grocer boys, and later Bolle who was taught as a grocer in Koege.

Peter Andreas drowned in the Praestoe inlet in 1792. At this time Andreas went to sea as a sailor, and later on he settled down to live in Koege.

As it is documented in following part from the book 'Praestoe Koebstad Historie' ( History of the borough of Praestoe ), Daniel Walcher Monefeldt was a churchwarden from 1786 and many years thereafter It would seem that Daniel had families to more grocers in the town - one was married to a NOHR and another to a STILLING, who could have been a sister-in-law to Daniel.

Daniel Walcher Monefeldt die in 1804. Shortly before this, Bolle Monefeldt married the eldest daughter of Else Margrethe from her marriage with Ole Rasmussen. It seems like Bolle Monefeldt had been in Praestoe for some time, where he settled down as a grocer. It was not Daniel's grocery shop that he toks over.

After the death of Daniel the widow continued to run the business together with the son Martin who was an assistant. The adminis- tration of estate began July 18, 1805 after notification from Else Margrethe Monefeldt.

At the same time the widow informed that the farmhand Mogens be given notice by November, and the maid Margrethe and a servant boy be given notice at the same time.

It was quite a big household that was sold at an auction. Together with grocery goods it is realized for a sum of 3622 Rigsdaler. There was 2000 Rigsdaler in outstanding debts, of which it happened to collect 1427 Rigsdaler. Corn on the farmland was sold for 229 Rigsdaler.

Also sold at the auction were:

The grocery shop in Adelgade for 2412 Rigsdaler

The house in Groennegade for 704 Rigsdaler

A barn in Groennegade for 260 Rigsdaler

The total income was 8756 Rigsdaler which does not cover the total debt of 9166 Rigsdaler.

Among creditors was grocer Bolle Monefeldt, who according to a bill dated May 28, 1806 - after the death of Daniel - had an outstanding account of 602 Rigsdaler.

The widow Else Margrethe Monefeldt had from 1805 until her death in 1810 received 300 Rigsdaler. The son Martin receives three years of salary, 180 Rigsdaler.

Before the death of his mother in January 1810, Martin Monefeldt had moved from the home, and in May of the same year was married at the Kalvehave Kirke. See table 5.

Extract from 'Praestoe Koebstad and Klosters Historie' ( The Story of Praestoe Borough and Convent ) and from 'Praestoe Amt Skole-historie ( The story of the schools of Praestoe county ):

At marriage and celebrational occasions there were collected quite large amounts of money, for instance at the marriage of the bailiff Haar 6 Rigsdaler, 2 Mark and 9 Skilling, and at the marriage of grocer Monefeldt 6 Rigsdaler.

THE YEAR 1789

In 1772 five of the prominent inhabitants of the city wrote to the church inspector, that they had expected that after Moeldrup became bellringer, the supervision of the churchyard would have been better than in former times. For many years it had been used for swines, geeses, horses, valves, cows and sheep that had been pastured there. Meanwhile, it could still be seen that the creature damaging the graves, what offended they the most because their dearest ones were there in their last homes of rest which were decorated after the old custom. Therefore, they had decided to - if Moeldrup would not stop this shameful behavior - sent a serious complaint to the right authorities.

This was supposed to have helped, as nothing more was heard before Mr. Ditzel found it appropriate to request for permission to let his cows graze here. In his request he said that if the creatures should damage a grave, he would of course reestablish it again. Furthermore he said that the cemetery was in bad condition, and therefore no real damage could occur. And finally: God made grass as food for creatures.

The church inspection declared that the applicant and others had been informed that creatures were forbidden in the cemetery - not even with tether, as peace for the graves was disturbed. The clerk had for a long time the right to harvest the grass as hay, and this he would keep as the capable schoolmaster he was. But on this occasion he was also told to watch for creatures and report to the church warden if any showed up.

It was not assumed that Ditzel would act in accordance with this, which had been demonstrated before. Once, when he was told to look after the clock on the churchtower, he answered the priest that he was clerk and not a watchman.

Admittedly it was a strange request to ask for letting the creatures graze at the cemetery, but the answer was strange too, especially as it was the Bishop of Sealand who gave it. The clerk got the right to tether his cows at the cemetery - with the restriction not to damage or to dirty the path people used when they went to the church.

The act of this document was rather disrespectful, as the local clerk was not informed. After some time he took the silence of the authorities as their acceptance, and one day he sent two creatures into the churchyard without tiring them to moderate their behaviour.

This was too much for the church warden - grocer Monefeldt - who became very angry. He caught the creatures and sent them back to the owner with strict orders to keep them from the churchyard - if not something serious would happen to both the creatures and the owner.... Afterwards Monefeldt wrote to the church inspection, that he - as both church warden and member of the community - saw it as his duty to prevent all disturbance and improper actions regarding both the church and the churchyard, even if anyone said that he's without responsibility if remained silent, and if the churchinspection would not support this he would report directly to the Cancilliet ( Cancilliet is the top authority of the church in Copenhagen ).

After this the case seems to have been forgotten, and the prompt declaratio to the authorities worked. Bishop Balle, who was friendly rested with Ditzel, privately wrote to him that it was wise to drop the case and peace on the churchyard was reestablished.

THE YEAR 1793

After having been asked to act as church warden for seven years, grocer Monefeldt resigned from the post in 1793. But it was impossible to get another to take the post. Then the churchinspection wrote to the authorities and declared that beside the citizens who already had positions in the city and grocer Juel who had legal reasons to refuse, there was no one suitable for the post, unless one would nominate a poor person to whom nobody would trust the property of the church. Therefore they asked if the Majesty the King could be induced to instruct Monefeldt to continue on the post until a proper successor was found.

CLEMENTINE CHARLOTTE MONEFELDT

born June 15, 1787 in Copenhagen dead May 10, 1851 in Naesby, Sealand - 65 years old.
married June 20, 1807 in Vor Frue Kirke, Copenhagen, with:

Clothing manufacturer and wholesaler FREDERIK CHRISTIAN
BENJAMIN BRANNER. A son Georg Christian Mechlenburg
Branner was priest in Naesby, Sealand.

A descendant from him, Fr. Branner, tells:

'After tradition, my great-grandmother Clementine Charlotte Branner, lived as a widow with a sister virgin Monefeldt, whose fiance, Mechlenburg, died in the Napoleon war. They lived by painting. In the family there still are some nice flower paintings, and a portrait of Mechlenburg.'

Only unmarried sister of Clementine is above mentioned Henriette Monefeldt. She was a schoolmistress until about 1845. In the years thereafter and until the death of Clementine in 1851, they might very well have been living together - probably in Naesby, where the son of Clementine was a priest from the year of 1846.

Fr. Branner continues:

'My grandfather owned a portrait made by Eckersberg, which now can be found in Kunstmuseet ( 'art museum in Copenhagen' ) which shows the doctor Rost. The picture was a gift from a drysalter ( Alexander ) Monefeldt'

THE STORY OF ANDREAS MONEFELDT

The following is from the book 'Danske i Groenland i det 18. aarhundrede' ( Danish in Greenland in the 18th century ), by H. Ostermann - Nyt Nordisk Forlag, Copenhagen:

A N D R E A S M O N E F E L D T A S S I S T A N T

Andreas Monefeldt was born in 1752, place and parents unknown.

With reference to his way of living, there is no doubt that he was educated as a tradesman, as he at the age of 23 was employed by the Royal Greenland trading company.

In the spring of 1776 he was sent as an asssistant to Ritenbenk, and as soon as he arrived there, he had to run the colony as well as the tradingbusiness, because grocer Geraae and the shipmaster traveled to Svatevogelbay on Arveprinsens Ejlands northwest side to investigate the place, as the grocer proposed to move the colony to this place.

At that time the colony was situated at Sarqaq (means 'sunny side') on the Nugssuaq-peninsula's southern side, and it was very far to go on trading expeditions from there, as well as it was a long way to Arveprinsens Ejland, where it was possible to catch whales.

The colony did not move, and one more assistant was employed, Johan Frederik Moltzau, and the two took turn making the expeditions until 1778, when Moltzau moved to Jakobshavn.

At this time there was so much for Monefeldt to do, that he could hardly do it satisfactorily. Grocer Geraae became unhappy with him and asked the management to get a new assistant. The management would not accept this as they, assisted by the shipmaster, considered him satisfactorily qualified to do the job as assistant.

He performed his duty the best way he could, but his health was weakened and by 1780 he asked for permission to go home. He received permission the year after, but before he went home, he was married on August 5, by the rural dean, Sverdrup, in Jakobshavn to the daughter of the grocer, Kirsten Geraae (born in Umanak ). And then he went home with his wife and her younger sister.

Upon his arrival home, the management asked if he would accept re-employment in Greenland, but with reference to his weakened health, he did not dare accept this.

He then applied for different jobs, and for this purpose got a nice recommendation from the management, who declared that he had 'shown ability and talent for business, and that his condition was of a character that would apply for his promotion only'. In the year of 1782 Andreas Monefeldt, former assistant at Ritenbenk in Greenland was rewarded by the Royal Country Society with a silver medal for catching 134 seals of different size, and was the first who used a net to catch seals on that place.

In 1783 he got a job as warehouse keeper at an East Indian company in Copenhagen; de Coninck and Co. The family then lived in Farvergade 67. When the company's trade in 1791 was reduced, they could not afford to keep him engaged. He was dismissed and received a nice recommendation saying: 'in this duty he has shown loyal, orderly and regular, so that we in every respect has been satisfied with his behavior, this we can truly testify'.

He then applied for different jobs, but it took some time before he got a new one. In January he applied for customs officer by Flekkefjord in Norway. In his application he remarked, that he had been making many applications and in the first 9 years has had a job to live by, but this has not been possible for the last three years, and he adds: 'Energy and conscientious behavior has always both in duty of the Majesty as well as duty in private business been the basis on which I trusted my hope and hope for fortune'.

April 17, same year his wife died, and June 19, he applied for customs- and clerk duty in Stavanger with the argument, that '13 years of my best age has gone. I am so much older but not happier. Feeding four motherless children educating them enlarges the grief at which I every day wake up and again lay down.' To this he received a nice recommendation from 'The Society of Wholesalers in the city':

'Herr Andreas Monefeldt, some years wholesalekeeper for the trading company de Connick & Co, is for us always known as an honest and business-abled man.'

February 9, 1795 he applied for job as customs officer in Christiansund. Here he called himself 'former trading- and whalehunter assistant at the colony Ritenbenk in Greenland', but that he had to leave Greenland in 1781, due to weakened health. After that, for a period of nearly 14 years he had applied for many jobs'.

He did not get any of the jobs, but became a trading assistant in a company in Copenhagen. Then on December 29, 1796 he married his sister-in-law Maren Geraae, born 1766 in Umanak. Now he stayed in Copenhagen without seeking more posts. In 1813 he was a clerk and shortly after wholesale keeper again. He died August 6, 1816 and was buried from Church of Trinitatis. His wife survived him by several years.

Andreas' father-in-law:

C H I E F   A S S I S T A N T

He was born in 1715 in the village Geraa in Dronninglund parish in Vendsyssel ( Jutland ). His name was Jens Andersen, but later on he took the name from his place of birth, as was common at these times.

After finishing school he was apprenticed as a carpenter, and in 1740 he was sent as one of landproprietor Jac. Severin's 'Jutland farmhands' to Greenland and soon thereafter he got a job as a carpenter at the colony Christianshaab. When 'The common 'actroyerede' Trading-Company' in 1750 took over the trading monopoly on Greenland, he was kept on duty there.

In 1754 he married a Greenland girl TUPERA, born about 1730 in Christianshaab. Three years later he was transferred to Ritenbenk. Here as well as in Christianshaab he regularly participated in trading expeditions, he was hired as trading assistant, when in 1758 a new colony, Nordsoack, was established on the western side of the Nugssuaq peninsula.

It proved to be a very unfortunate place for a colony, as the distance to the civilized places in the great Umanak bay were great, and the inhabitants tended to do their trading with Dutch whalers. Many fatalities and unfortunate problems were encountered because of the hard climate, so in 1760 they were ordered to look for a more suitable place for the colony in the Umanakbay area. It was decided to use the 'Ommenach-island', but in 1761 with only a storehouse, assistant Geraae and two men settled down here, to investigate if the place was suitable. This proved to be the case, but not before 1763 the colony was fully established.

When a missionary came to Umanak in 1765, the trading company wrote to the grocer that 'the missionary has to have the room which was formerly Jens Andersen's, and the assistant who is married to a local wife, who is expected to have the 'wild mans house'. He must live in this or look for other habitation at the colony.'

Assistant Geraae who, according to the missionary was a simple and Christian man, welcomed the missionary warmly and helped him into the mission. But as the missionary understood from Geraae that he found the situation of being moved from his room after long faithful duty strange, he asked if the assistant could be given some kind of compensation.

At that time there weren't any other Christians than the Geraaes, a total of six. Soon more showed up who wanted an education in Christianity, and during the next 3 to 4 years quite a nice church community was established, not least because of the assistant and his family.

In 1770 his wife died, and two years later he moved to Ritenbenk. From here he went to Denmark in 1773 after having asked for a leave. Here he was married again March 1, 1774 in Vartov Church by the priest Paul Egede to 'Maid Mette Moeller'.

May 5th. he was promoted as 'head assistant at Ritenbenk', and shortly after he went there again. He succeeded in improving production, as he introduced catching seals with nets, the same way that he had done at Umanak together with the grocer. To improve production further, he repeated a suggestion from former grocer Dalager in Ritenbenk to move the colony to 'Svarte Vogelbay' on Arveprinsens Ejland's northwestside, as this would be a more central position in the district. As the state had taken over the Greenland monopoly, the board of managers accepted, especially because of plans about catching whales, too.

In 1776 the shipowner, who came to Ritenbenk, went on an expedition together with Geraae to Svarte Vogelbay, and they chose the middle one of the three islands as the best place for a colony.

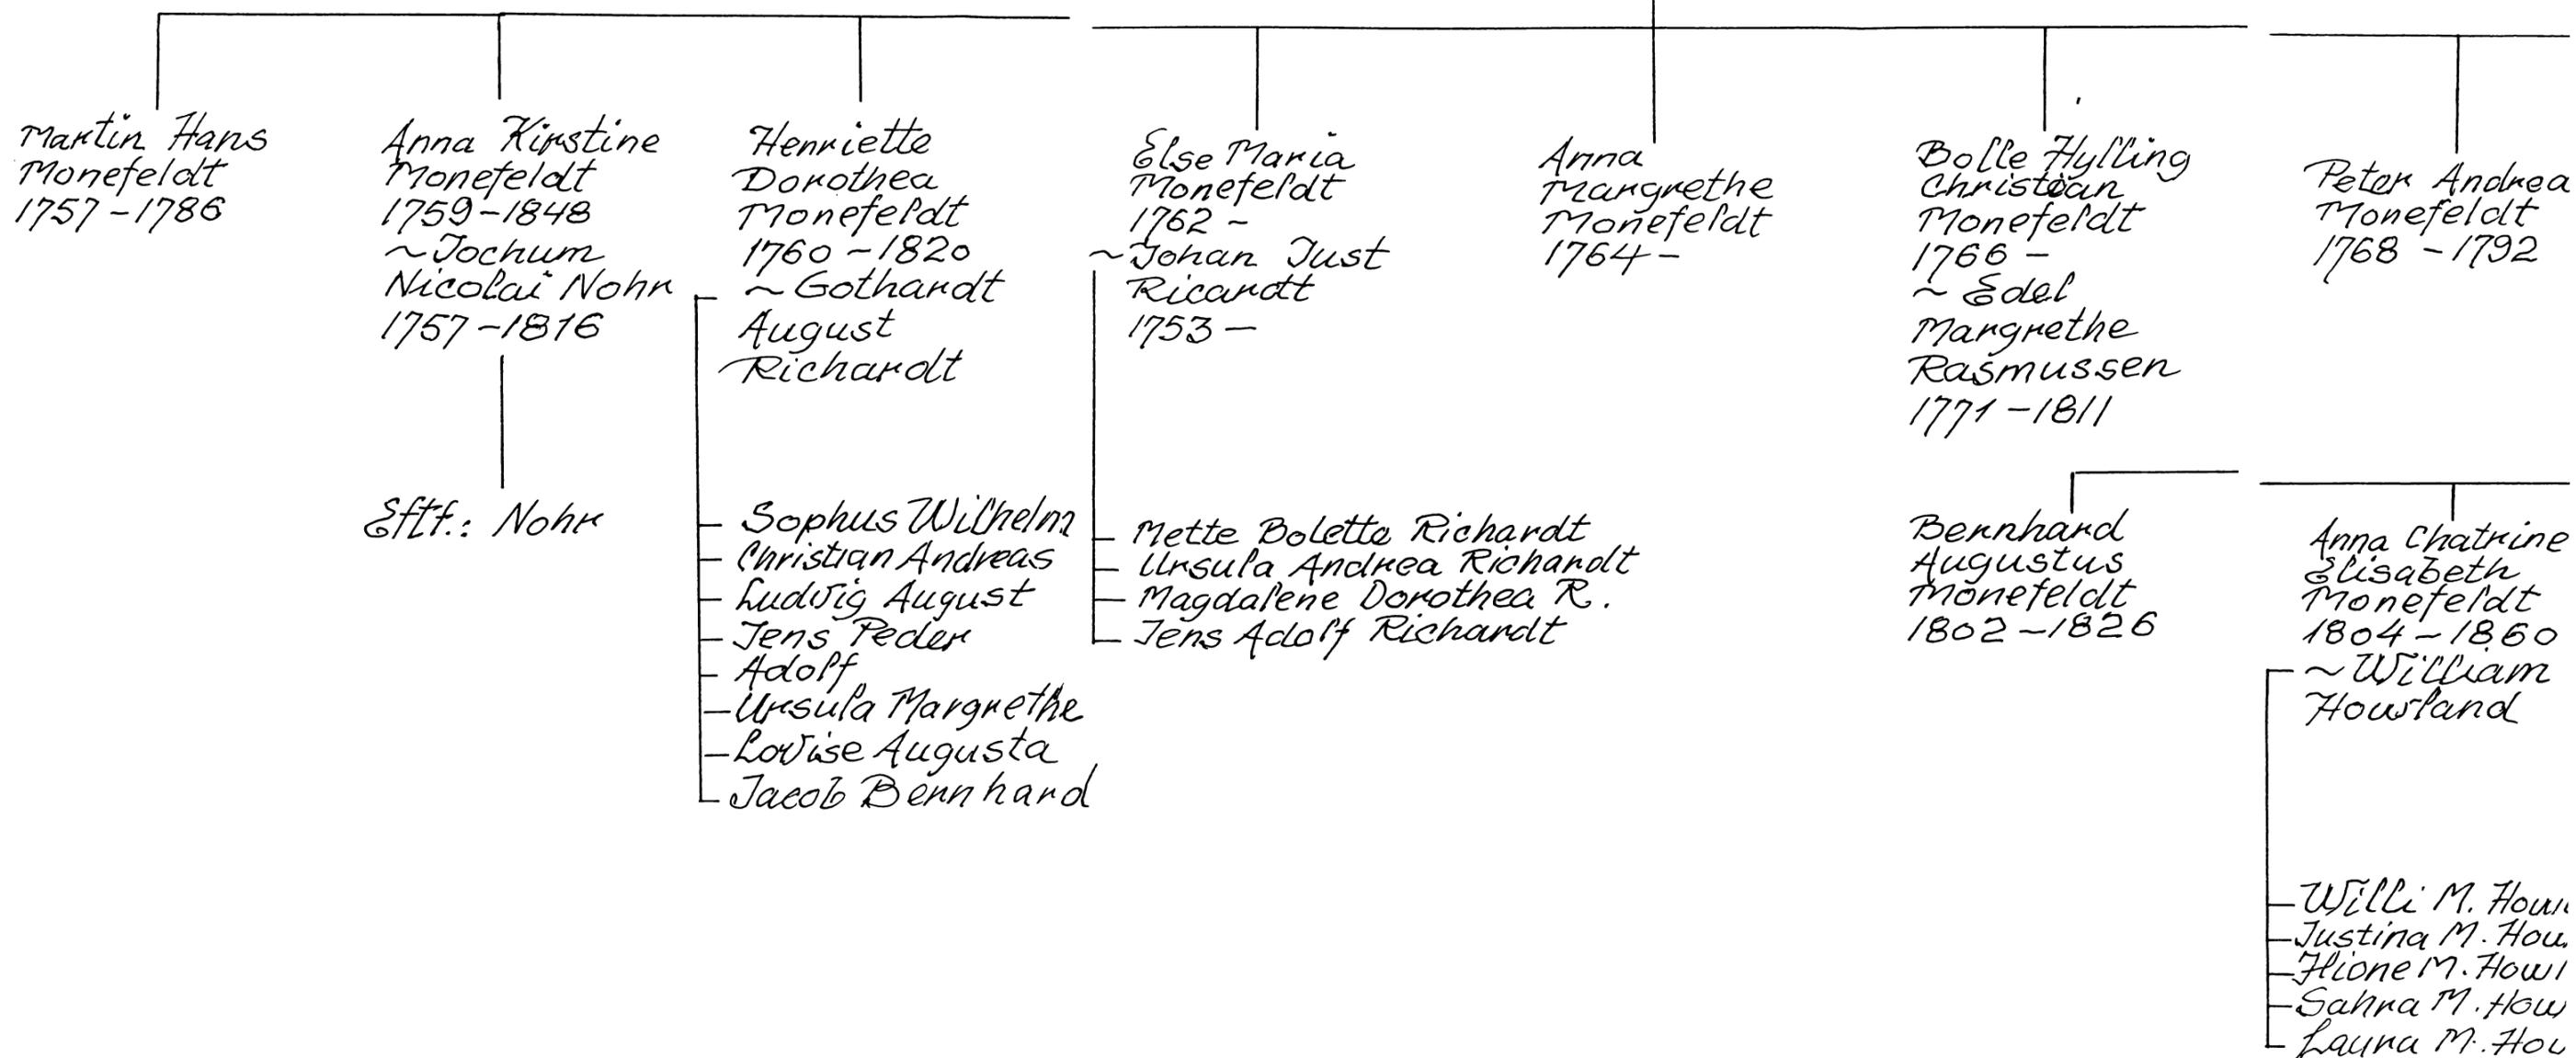

The colony was moved to this place in the summer of 1781. It went smoothly, and the houses were built as the last ship left in late August. A whale station lead by an assistant was established.

The move helped the well-being of the whole colony, and already in 1782 the inspector reported that the new Ritenbenk was an important place because of the whaling and seal fishery.

The same year on the 26th of August Geraae died as one of the oldest servants in trading. His widow and the two small children had to stay in Ritenbenk until a year later. She went home in 1783 and lived in Copenhagen until she died after the year 1800.

According to his brother, Peter Wilhelm Richardt, Gotthardt August because of weakness, as he was only 49 years old at that time.

1804 Grocer in Praestoe, presumed to have been in the city for some years as he in the same year married Edel Margrethe, stepdaughter to Daniel. The grocery of Bolle is situated at Adelgaden 134 - 136. Therefore it can't be the grocery of Daniel he took over.

1806 Bolle Monefeldt tried to get an agreement with his creditors. He did not succeed, therefore he had to ask for an auction of his grocery.

1809 Bolle Monefeldt once again had to ask for administration of his estate.

1813 Statement of Bolle Monefeldt ended with a hugh debt.

---

After selling the grocery store Bolle Monefeldt settled down as a pub owner on the other side of Adelgade. Bolle Monefeldt took over this estate after his mother-in-law Else Margrethe Monefeldt ( widow of Daniel ) and her son of first marriage Andreas Rasmussen.

Else Margrethe died in 1810. The wife of Bolle, Edel Margrethe died in 1811, and in 1813 the house was sold. What later happened to Bolle is unknown.

Extract from 'History of Praestoe Borough and Monastery', 1899:

'In 1805 grocer Monefeldt (Bolle), who saw the success his competitors had with the building of a dam on the western side of the city, found that he should make a proper road on the eastern side, but the difficulties here were bigger than on the west side, as the costs of building a bridge over the small stream was estimated at 2500 Rigsdaler. Despite this Monefeldt worked hard for the case and even applied for a loan at the Chancellery. But the citizens found it doubtful that the city could bear the costs related to the payback of the loan.

The prefect was of the same opinion and the loan was rejected, and the project rested till 1819, when the bailiff reinitiated it. Now everybody agreed on the need for the project and the case was quickly accepted. The project started and was built within the same year..'

Extract from J.P. Trap - Danmark: 'Praestoe County':

'During the 19th century the city grew steadily. The city made a landconnection on the west point and made a filling up in the western part of the inlet, the so-called 'Plask'. In 1819 the Easter bridge was built, which gave connection to the southeast. Until this time one had to drive the wagon through the water stream. The bridge was later replaced by a dam.'

PETER ANDREAS MONEFELDT

christened August 5, 1768 in Church of Herfoelge dead May 28, 1792 - drowned at age 26 years old buried June 1, 1792 in Praestoe

Shortly after his father's death in 1783 he got new clothes, according to a bill dated July 12, 1783.

The reason for this is certainly that he was to be apprenticed to his uncle, grocer Daniel Monefeldt in Praestoe, where he was living in November the same year.

In 1787 according to the census, he was mentioned as grocer boy, with his uncle. After having finished his apprenticeship, he stayed in Praestoe. He drowned and was buried in Praestoe, only 26 ears old.

ANDREAS MONEFELDT

Like his brother he was grocer boy with his uncle in Praestoe.

At the time of his brother's death it is informed that Andreas was a grocer on Iceland.

In 1801 he was with the ship 'Holsteen' from the Asiatic Company as a writer for the captain. He was paid 4 Rigsdaler monthly. He deserted March 8, 1803.

Later he lived in Koege, where his mother Pauline Dorothea Monefeldt, ( christened Sidenborg ) lived with him, where she died in 1814, 85 years old.

of Esaias.

One relative of Esaias Monefeldt, Miss Frances Monefeldt Howland (see above) wrote a letter to with Svend Monefeldt ( 1900 - 1978 ) in Copenhagen in 1954.

Beside the information about the family which is repeated above, she wrote that the American part of the family had always been spoken French, and she herself in the years 1911 - 1913 had studied in Paris. Her ancestor, William Howland, came to America (New England) in 1620 with the ship 'Mayflower'.

Miss Frances Monefeldt Howland gave a 'travel-writing-desk' to Svend Monefeldt, which had belonged to Maria Hedevig Monefeldt, married to Esaias, as she found it correct to give it back to Denmark.

It is a nice piece of work with sheets of brass. On the cover there is a plate with the name:

MADAME MARIA HEDEVIG MONEFELDT

In the desk there is a daguerreotype of Maria Hedevig in her later years, probably from about 1850.

The desk is now in the possession of Svend Monefeldt's son, Peter.

In 1850 the swedish writer Frederika Bremer ( 1801 - 1865 ) visited America:

'Frederika Bremer was surprised by the aristocratic southern states, loved the easy life with the plantation owners, who showed great hospitality. She enjoyed the climate and the nature, the culture that was in contrast to the Yankees ambitious mentality in certain parts of the northern states. She nearly forgot the big issue at that time, and lived with human slave owners and willingly let them serve her.'

Extract from Frederika Bremers 'Hemmen i den Nya Varlden' ( Homes in the New World ):

Charleston, South Carolina, March 28, 1850

The fourth day in the morning we came to Charleston. Grey, sad morning, absolutely not comfortable. But the beaches surrounding the harbor with dark cedar trees and light green hardwoods was unusual and appealing. Everything was new to my eyes, except the city that looked like European cities, as well as the houses of Boston and New York.

Mrs. Howland sent her brother ( William Scottmann Monefeldt, born 1810 ) a handsome middleaged gentleman, to take me to her home in his wagon, but I preferred my freedom and followed my friends to the hotel. And here I am now, in a small room with four cold white walls. I have been out in town for two hours, enjoying my loneliness and the new things I see everywhere, the many gardens ( the city is one big collection of landhouses with verandas and piazzaes, with leaves and flowers ), many for me strange trees with flowers or oranges with green glow in the gardens, and smells in the wind. A lot of negroes in the streets. Two third of the people seen in town are negroes or mulatoes. They are ugly, but look healthy and well fed. In particular many fat negro- and mulatowoman. Their multi-coloured scarves are giving them a picturesque look, as they are tied around their heads - a thousand times prettier than the hats used in the free states.

Besides the negroes I saw many birds - looked like turkeys - that settles down everywhere seeking feed, tame so they did not move because of pedestrians. A lot of them sat on the roofs with the wings spread out, looking curious and priceless.

March 29, 1850

Now I have to say goodbye to you, as I'm going out to visit Mrs. Howland ( Anna Cathrine Elisabeth Amalie Monefeldt, married with William Howland ), to see if I like her.

Later.

A few more words to tell you that I have seen Mrs. Howland and her home. Just the look on her face and her expression was enough for me. I liked her immediately, and my short talk with her confirmed the first impression. She is surely one of the intelligent good motherly women on earth, and with a little weakness for literature and literal people, whom I find very pleasant. She's my age, and from her looks she could as well be Swedish. She is of Scandinavian origin. Her father was Danish and was named Esaias Monefeldt.

Charleston, April 12, 1850

I have been here for fourteen days now, and even as it has been raining most of the time ( and it still is ), I have had days wishing that all the sick and weak humanity could move to this place, breath the air, see this magnificent sky and earth, that they would freshen up like getting a balm of life. I can understand that sailors, who reached these coasts, and knew these areas, this air believed to be drinking elixir and hoped to find the source of eternal life here.

In the days gone I have been in the surroundings of the city with Mrs. Howland and kind acquaintances. Overall, after having ploughed through long stretches of sand ( they are now building roads with planks which are better to drive on ) one gets into a forest. The forest here is a paradise wilderness, rich with trees and plants that I have never seen before. Nothing is planned arranged, everything just grows between each other; myrtles, pine trees, magnolias, cypress, elm and oak, and many trees that I don't know yet.

In the garden of Mrs. Howland I see nectarines and figs with fruit and the Carolina humming bird swings as a little spirit, and eats of the red caprifolium while floating sucking honey. It is beautiful and I love to be here.

Now I have to tell you a little about the home in which I'm living, feeling like home and so happy. that I could not wish any better. The house lays free by one of the most countrylike streets - Lynch Street - and from one side you can oversee the land and the river from where the fresh air comes in. White roses and caprifolium grows up of the upper piazza and frames the veranda. I walk here often, especially morning and evening, drinking the beautiful air and looking at the neighborhood. On the upper floor is my airy and pretty room.

One of the most common foods in the south is rice ( mainproduct of Carolina ) boiled in water, so that the grains are soft and taste delicious. I always eat this rice for breakfast, as I mean it is healthy. Often it is eaten with cold butter, and many also use boiled eggs. Furthermore they use bacon, fish, sweet potatoes, maize, eggs, milk and more. One of the often served dishes in the south is buckwheat or wheatplates, eaten with brown syrup, really a hughe amount of sweet stuff. During the meal one of the blacks ( a boy or girl ) waves flies away with a feather. After lunch one goes to the piazza outside for awhile, and the children play in the garden, and it is my pleasure to see the gracious Sarah, springing with youthful freshness and happiness, light as a hind with hair and ribbons flying in the wind. She is an intense pleasant person. The elderly sister Ilione is also a clever girl, with a nice and confident nature. Willie has beautiful eyes and brown hair, and Laura is a little rosebud. After breakfast I go for myself and it is quite all the morning. At twelve my second meal is sent up by Mrs. Howland, butter and bread, a glass of milk with ice, oranges and bananas. You see, my little heart, there is no danger of hunger.

Three o'clock is lunchtime and from time to time there is a guest. In the afternoon my kind hostess walks with me, as I find it most pleasant. The evening is the culmination in this home ( in many other homes the most boring part ? ). The light is turned on in the salons and tea is served. There we have Mrs. Howland seated nice and fine at her big teatable lined up with good stuff. Small teatables are placed around ( I always get my own nearby the sofa ), and the clever negro boy Sam ( Mrs. Howlands favourite ) serves refreshments. 3 or 4 sons of the family's friends always show up, a few young girls too, and the young dance to the piano.

The children of the house are nice to each other and often dances with each other, as we did in the evenings at home. But they are happier than we were. Usualy I play a little for them, waltz or francaise. Visitors com and go. Later, one goes to the piazza, walking about or sitting talking together, but here I prefer to walk alone enjoying the balsamic air, looking through the open doors to the children dancing - Sarah always idealistic, nice and pleasant, and without knowing I'm watching. Mr. Monefeldt, Mrs. Howlands brother ( the gentleman who picked me up the first morning ), is a frequent guest in the evening, a cosy talkative man and storyteller. But no one becomes me so well as my intelligent hostess. And I really can't describe how excellent she is.

Now I'm occupied with painting ( after an oil painting ) a portrait of the Indian chief Oseconehola, who leading the Seminoles for five years fought bravely against the Americans in Florida when they were chasing them to move them west to Arkansas. That part in the south of Florida, which was populated by the wild Indian Seminole and Creeks, and where they constantly frightened the white settlers, is covered with woods known as Light Wood, because of the light wood in the middle, which easily burns. It is not big and is easy to cut down. Arkansas, on the left side of Mississippi, is mostly covered by oaks, borders wild plains and has a hard climate.

Therefore, the Seminole chief Oseconehola answered to the offering given him and his people from the government of the United States: 'My people are used to hot weather, fresh lakes and streams in Florida, the light wood. They can't live in the cold country where only oak grows. People can't fell the big trees, they will die from lack of heat.' And when they finally gave the choice between total war with US or signing the contract that would lead his people from Florida, he stuck his knife through it and said: I'll defy them for 5 years.' And the dispute went on for 5 years and cost a lot of blood on both sides, and the land was in the possession of the indians - could have been still - if Oseconehola was not caught through betrayal, when he under protection of the white flag came to discuss with the Spanish general Hernandez. The betrayal act was Spanish, but it seemed that the American officers knew about it. Oseconehola was led as a prisoner to St. Augustin fort, and later to Charleston and Fort Moultrie on Sullivans Island. From this moment he seemed broken down. People having visited him in his imprisonment ( Mr. Monefeldt was one of them ) said that they had never seen a look so dark and melancholy. He never complained, but often spoke with bitterness about the way he was caught and the unfair treatment happening to his people, when they were forced to move from the land of their fathers to a country in the north where no light wood is found.

JULIANE MARIE MONEFELDT

was named after the widow of king Frederik V, Juliane Marie, who from 1772 was protector of the diocese of Valloe.

Juliane died at the age of 40, after giving birth to 10 children during only 14 years. Her husband, Hans Skade Holm, writes after the death of his wife:

'My children's loving and honest mother, Juliane Marie Holm born Monefeldt, no longer is alive. She ended her life on earth January 14 1813, the day on which she, 19 years before gave me the oath of truth. She kept this until death took her away from me.

Dear children, keep forever in mind a holy respect for your mother, knowing that I, in her, lost a friend and loving wife, the best one could imagine, whose highest duty was care for her children, and their life her highest pleasure. Therefore, she will be missed and never forgotten by your father.

Dear children, be faithful to God, so was your blessed mother. I hope by end of the line to be united with her in the holy home.

May God give me this and for you as well for the sake of Jesus Christ.'

born March 24, 1841 in Christianssted, Sct. Croix. Died shortly after his wedding with Joaquina del Gado. No children. Lived at age of 14 with his uncle Alexander Gerhardt Monefeldt in Copenhagen.

ELISE ELMINE MONEFELDT

born March 24, 1841 - twin to Edvard Hermand ( dead as a baby )

Edvard Monefeldt 1812 - 1878 was only 13 years old when his father, Martin Edvard Monefeldt, died in 1825. The year after on the 26th of November, Edvard was confirmed in the Danish-Lutherian church in Christianssted on St. Croix. From this fact it is assumed that relatives or close friends to the family had taken Edvard with them to the Danish West Indian Islands.

In 1836 he was referred to as a clerk in West India, and about this time he has his first child, Susanna. The mother was Rebecca Wolfsen, about whom nothing is known but the birth of her 5 children, that she had without getting married to Edvard Monefeldt.

In 1844 the youngest of Edvard's children died and it is assumed that Rebecca is dead about this time too. Edvard acknowledged to be the father of 4 children with Rebecca Wolfsen. Then he left for Copenhagen to be jurist.

In 1846 on the 2nd of May Edvard is jurist and at this time it was mentioned that he had been on St. Croix for 19 years and in most of these years had been bailiff in Christianssted. Edvard went to the West-India islands again.

In 1851 on May 8, Edvard was an police officer in Christianssted and February 27, 1854 he was appointed bailiff at the same place.

In 1857 Edvard Monefeldt settled down as an interpreter in English. The authorization was given by Governor Johan Frederik Schlegel with the following words:

'By giving you the attached by the Governor written authorization to act as interpreter in the English language, it is noted that your application will be sent to the Ministry of Indian affairs to be decided upon, we will ask you to sign and return attached form, and let the authorisation be registered.'

Secretary of the Governor, St. Thomas January 4, 1858.

A.J. Holm

In St. Thomas Tidende ( newspaper ) from January 6, 1858 it is noted that the Governor has appointed Examined Jurist Edvard Monefeldt to give service to everybody with translation to and from the English language, taking the price that he and the concerned person could agree upon.

( August Jagemann Holm was son of Juliane Marie Monefeldt and grocer Hans Skade Holm, Frederikssund. He started as an apprentice in Vestindisk Company ). Later he was appointed secretary for the Governor and Royal bookkeeper for the islands. He was secretary of department and appointed a knight. After resigning in 1862, he lived in Copenhagen where he owned Noerregade 35.

In 1859 Edvard again applied for an appointment as clerk and became clerk at the bailiff office on St. Croix with a yearly wage of 88 Rigsdaler. As translator he received furthermore 100 Rigsdaler each year.

In 1867 Edvard Monefeldt was referred to in the Statecalendar as a public servant in Danish West India and interpreter of English in Christianssted.

In 1872 Anna Eliza and Edvard celebrated their silver wedding and about this time, they left for Puerto Rico. They settled down in Humacao where the son Jens Alexander Gerhardt was manager of a sugar mill. The year after Anna Eliza dies and Edvard died in 1878 and both was buried in Humacao.

Through his son Jens Alexander Gerhardt 1839-1920, Edvard Monefeldt is founder of a part of the family with many now living members in Puerto Rico and the United States.

The brother of Edvard died in Denmark in 1868 and about this time any connection to Denmark ended.

JENS ALEXANDER GERHARDT MONEFELDT was managing director for the Oscar Bravo, Central Rochelaise, sugar mill and sugarcane fields in Humacao. Later he lived in Mayaques, where he was the British Vice Consul.

His grandchild, Edvard Harold Monefeldt, tells: 'Jens Alexander Gerhardt Monefeldt came to Puerto Rico as young and lived in Humacao. His neighbor was the Catholic priest, with whom he developed a close relationship. He did not convert to Catholicism, but the friendship with the priest led to his interest in many religious subjects. As the home was bilingual, many missionaries stayed in his home until they became established.

My parents worked at the sugar mill, and every day my sister 'Fanny' and I went by horse and wagon to the school, which was situated near my grandparent's house. We got our lunch from our grandparents, and after school we went back to the sugar mill again.

When he resigned, he furnished a room as his office. From 8 am until 12 and from 1 pm until 5 pm he was in his room, and nobody was allowed to disturb him. For many years he had diplomatic immunity because, despite his American citizenship, he was the British representative on the island as vice consul. He then lived in Mayaques. During the Spanish-American war, the flag was hoisted day and night. As it was impossible to get a new one, the women made one from different colored materials. He praised it a lot and was buried with it.

He died at age 81 years, and until he died he worked actively. He left a library of 2000 books, which was handed over to the Union Theological Seminary in Puerto Rico. He was my idol. Everything he told me I should do, I knew was possible to achieve.'

lived for many years in Ponce, where he met my mother, tells Edvard Herald Monefeldt. My father protected the town Ponce against being bombed by the American Navy. He had diplomatic immunity because of his father's post as British consul. The American fleet was on patrol outside the harbor of Ponce. A patrol was landed and they were assumed to be looking for the Spanish regulars and demanded surrender of the city. Somebody sent the patrol out of the town. My father spoke native English, and persuade the leader to wait at his home, while he himself would contact the 'regulars'. Despite difficulties he succeeded before the deadline, and a bombing of the city was avoided.

Alexander Gerhardt was a freemason, and while they lived in Ponce he was an officer in the voluntary fire corps. All his life he was connected with the sugar mill in Mayagues, where because of his natural talent for numbers had the responsibility for the book-keeping. He spoke three languages; English, as the language spoken in his home, Spanish which is the Puerto Rico native language, and furthermore his father let him learn french by a private teacher.

ANGELAS HOSTA was the daughter of Jose Hosta, Spanish colonel, and Conchita Pasarell. He was a professional soldier with exam from the Spanish Military Academy. He served in Puerto Rico, Cuba and Spain.

The son, Edvard Herald Monefeldt tells: 'When my mother 'Angeles' was a young girl, her father died. The family left for Ponce, Puerto Rico. I believe this was because her mother Conchita Passarell must have been born here and she had family in that area. She had a little private school, and the oldest son went at work to help feed the family.

My mother would have liked to be an actress, but her father told her, that she should grow up as a lady. She was talented as storyteller, and wrote poems and prose.

CONTACT WITH DENMARK:

In 1954 an aunt of the abovementioned Malvina Louise Monefeldt corresponded with Svend Monefeldt in Copenhagen. There was no follow up on this, and Malvina ( aunt Mina ) died in 1967.

Shortly after in 1968, a contact with Gerhardt Monefeldt was established and a correspondence was started. It was followed up by the sister of Gerhardt, Fanny, and later in 1983 by the younger brother Herman who started to work out a table of the family.

In 1985 we were happy to be visited by Fanny and Josie ( Ligia Josefine ) and the two daughters of Fanny, Fannie and Ana Ines ( Annie ).

After this visit, Edvard Harold Monefeldt ( Ed ) sent a comprehensive amount of material, which - together with information from other family members, not least the Josie - has given a good overview of the Monefeldt-family in Puerto Rico and US.

ANA LIGIA MONEFELDT

birth            October 21, 1905 in Ponce, Puerto Rico dead            4 years old in Ponce

ANA LIGIA was named after the key figure in the book Quo Vadis, Ligia, and was called Ana after her aunt Anna Monefeldt ).

Her mother studied English because the parents decided this to be the only language spoken at home. The Spanish language they had to learn outside the home. When Ligia died, her mother stopped the English study.

Ligia died because of whooping cough. After a walk together with her mother and little brother Edvard, she was sick, went into the sitting room with the head lowered. An artery in her head burst because of a tremendous cough. She died after 3 or 4 hours.

Her mother wrote a poem about the luck she felt at the birth of Ligia, but now she belonged to God. Now she felt her home empty. So nobody can have this feeling for eternity:

De Dios hasta el postvel Suspiro Que exhala alma,
venturosa del hogar:
Pues yo al tenerte creia
eterna tanta ventura
mas nada en la vida dura sin voluntad de Dios
ya tu nido esta vacio
ya tus padres no te besan ilorando en Silencio rezan pidiendo resignation.

De Dios no de nosotros son los hijos que adaramos
a los que la vida damos
y que prestados nos son.
Hay de aqeal que eterna
su dicha crea
i Pues ni hoja se menea sin la voluntad Dios.

Gelin was the favorite of her grandfather. He used to call her 'cara sucia' ( dirty face ) as a joke, as he once found her in this condition. According to Mrs. Bravo, wife to the owner of the Rocholaise Telephonecentral, she was the prettiest of Mr. Monefeldt's children.

When Gelin was 12 or 13 years she lived one year with aunt Mina in Rio Piedras. She jumped directly from the 4th school year to the 6th. While in high school she was burned, so her right hand and back were badly damaged. Later her arm was operated on so it could function again.

Gelin studied for two years at a secretary course on the University of Puerto Rico. Later on she decided to work in US, where she met John E. Leyland and got married.

Angelita died in an accident.

LIGIA JOSEFINA MONEFELDT ( Josie )

birth April 28, 1914

Unmarried

LIGIA JOSEFINA MONEFELDT was named after her sister Ligia, who died of whooping cough. She also got the whooping cough, and her mother moved to Guanajibo near the sea, so her daughter could get fresh air.

The family moved from Mayaques to the sugar plantation, where they lived in the big house, which was originally built for the owner himself. There were a lot of mosquitoes on the plantation and Josie got malaria. After recommendation of the doctor, Josie went to aunt Mina's home in Rio Pieras. She studied there and received a cultural and social engaged education.

When her father, Alexander Gerhardt, became ill and was unable to work, the family had to leave the sugar plantation to return to Mayaques. Josie went to Mayaques too and was home when her father died in 1932.

After examination from high school, Josie had to work for free all summer to find students for the Collegio Cordoba, where she was to work as teacher. The College went bankrupt, but was bought by some of the former teachers of the school, who named it 'Legio Puerto-riqueno'.

Josie worked for 15 years as a teacher of 1st grade at Legio Puerto-riqueno. Her nephew, Robert C. Leyland, lived with her from the time he was six years old. At school she was a teacher to her nieces Fannie Simonpietri and Conchita Martinez, as well as her nephew Robert.

Josie got a BA in education, administration of schools, study of library and audiovisual studies.

Ligia Josefina Monefeldt became an assisting teacher at the teacher degree study on University of Puerto Rico. Later she was appointed librarian at the same public school, where she had been teacher.

This is from the story told by Josie herself.

birth July 7, 1915 in Mayaques married 1941 to

CONCHITA MONEFELDT went to the elementary and the high school in Mayaques. She was privileged, never standing still, so the teachers called her 'perpetuum mobile' ( latin: restless ). She took her exam after three years, without studying in the summer. Normally a student would have used at least two summers studying to finish in three years.

In 1936 she took exam in french from the University of Puerto Rico after three years. She worked as Spanish teacher at the Humacao High School. She was a girl scout guide as well, and later she worked as a teacher in English for three years at Central High School in Santurce.

Conchita married the Spanish photographer Rafael Martinez, and they had two children. She stopped educating to bring up her own children and help her husband with photography. As her husband became ill, Conchita took the exam to be a librarian and later on worked as such at the head library of Puerto Rico.

She always tried to help somebody who was in need. When she was angry it only lasted for a minute, and she always tried to make everybody around her happy.

Conchita Martinez now lives in Rio Piedras, Puerto Rico. Twice a year she goes to New York to visit children and grandchildren.

Now Conchita belongs to the educators group in the San Francisca Cooperative Building where she lives. She has helped establish a library, a baseball and volleyball team and a grandparents club.

MALVINA was born while the family lived at the sugar plantation La Rochelaise, and was the only 'Jibarita' ( country girl ) in the family. Minin called her sister Fanny 'tata', as some small girls use to call their nannies in Puerto Rico.

Minin completed her four years at high school after 3 years. Fanny helped her with an English course IV, which she took by correspondence. In the later years they moved to Rio Piedras.

One day aunt Mina, who was a professor then, was called to the chief of protocol who told that: 'Miss Monefeldt, by a big mistake there has arrived a diploma from Mayaques High School for you.' Mina's answer: 'Don't worry, it is for my niece who is named after me.'

While Malvina studied at the University of Puerto Rico, she got a job as librarian at the Institute for Tropical Medicine. She was offered a scholarship to study library science at Columbia University in United States. She accepted and even as the class had started 3 weeks earlier she 'with help of God' passed her exam.

After the exam from Columbia, Malvina worked as a librarian at the Faculty of Agriculture in Mayaques, and later as librarian at the Carey military base. Here she met her husband, lieutenant John C. Steigerwalt.

MARTIN MONEFELDT, who was trading assistant by his father, moved shortly after death of the father in 1804 from Praestoe to Langebaek in Kalvehave parish. He lived in Laengebaek Moelle, and it is assumed that he was engaged here as a miller.

Langebaek Mill was nearest neighbor to the rectory in Langebaek where Mette Rasmusdatter was engaged as a maid. Mette and Martin were married May 25, 1810 in the Church of Kalvehave, and January 24, 1811 the first child was born.

The grandchild of Martin Monefeldt, Julius, has told that Martin was manager/farmer for rural dean Nielsen in Langebaek. This must mean that Martin was engaged by the priest and had the management of the farm belongind to the church.

The three youngest children died in 1835 within a period of only 8 days, at age only 6, 9 and 11 years - presumedly of a infectious disease.

RASMUS DANIEL MONEFELDT was called Rasmus Langebaek, not to be mistaken to be his uncle, who also was named Rasmus. I the beginning of their marriage Sofie and Rasmus lived in Vordingborg, but they moved to Viemose in Kalvehave parish, where Rasmus bought a house in 1879 ( Bondegaardsstraede 25, 4772 Langebaek )

A brother of Rasmus, Julius Monefeldt ( 1862 - 1941 ), gave following report about 1933:

'Our brother Rasmus Langebaek had 3 sons and 2 daughters in Amerika. The oldest son Carl has 4 sons and 2 daughters, all married except the youngest. He had 7 grandchildre. After death of Rasmus Langebaek widow Sofie went with the remaining family to Amerika. The widow and the daughter ( who had a son, Erik ) had a laundry on Kastelsvej in Copenhagen. They moved to Amerika about 1907. The son Julius was married with Mary and they had 2 children. The daughter Cristine was married with Jacob.'

For some years the family wrote letters with Julius, and probably to other family members, but after the death of Julius in 1941, there seems to have been no contact.

I have called JENS PEDER DANIELSEN MONEFELDT 'the black sheep' of the family, without emphasizing this too much, because he was remarkably different from his brothers and sisters.

Jens Peder was married to Gustava Person who was fosterdaughter of a Swedish priest. They had the two children, Camilla and Peter Gustav, but in 1883 Jens Peder took his own life. Officially he died at the Hospital of Helsingor, but the reality is that he hung himself.

An advertisement in the Helsingor Paper said that he was colporteur, which meant that he made pasquinades or libels - the newspaper of that time.

A FAMILY OF EMIGRANTS

A report about Rasmus Daniel Monefeldt ( Rasmus Langebaek ) and Sophie Eleonoras descendants in America.

Besides the report from Julius - described above - there was very little information about this part of the family. From time to time I got addresses for people in the USA with the name Monefeldt, who must be descendants of Rasmus Langebaek.

FROM VOLMER MONEFELDT, about 1967-68 and probably later:

J. Monefeldt, 1549 W. Farwell, Chicago, Illinois, USA.

FROM PALLE MONEFELDT, employed in a car-rental company, said that the following person visited Denmark in 1973, but without making contact:

Timothy Monefeldt, 1300 Jones Ave, Racine, WI 53 402

IN 1985 EDWARD MONEFELDT in Tennessee sent these addresses of Monefeldts that he had met:

Margaret Monefeldt Blystad, 2064 Deana Blvd. Racine, Wisconsin, USA.

Hazel Monefeldt Reep, 2206 Cleveland, Racine, Wisconsin, USA.

As he met them they were on their way to visit a brother:

Norman Monefeldt, Dunedin, Florida, USA.

And had another brother:

Edwin Monefeldt, Frankfort, Kentucky, USA.

They also had an uncle:

Fred Monefeldt, Sunset Colony 820, 2400 West Borward Blvd., Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, USA.

In November 1993 I sent letters to Margaret Monefeldt Blystad, Hazel Monefeldt Reep and Fred Monefeldt. The letter to Margaret was returned, but the others remained unanswered. But in October 1994 I got a letter from Mrs. Penny Allen, state of Washington, who searched for a contact with the Danish family. Penny gave a lot of information, and among told me that she is the daughter of Erik, who together with his mother Marie Monefeldt and grandmother Sophie Eleonora, emigrated for USA in 1910.

I answered immediately, and got a quick reply in return from Penny. She had for some years been collecting information on the family in USA and recently searched for information in the Mormon Genealogic Library in Salt Lake City.

Penny had a lot of information, about Danish relatives - but was missing a Danish contact. Therefore, she wrote to 8 Monefeldt-addresses in Denmark, taken from a telephone directoty.

In her second letter of October 22, 1994, Penny wrote:

'You can't believe how excited I am, and you won't believe this story. I have been corresponding with Hazel Monefeldt for at least two years, and she never mentioned getting any letter from you. I recently started writing to her daughter. She sent me your letter, which you wrote to her mother a year ago. The interesting thing is I had just finished writing to eight people in Denmark ( the same letter you received from me ). I went into town to mail my eight letters and picked up my mail on the way back. The letter from Hazel's daughter was in the mail, with your letter to her mother. Since I knew you would write back to me, I did not write any more letters.

Penny continues: I figured my grandmother, her mother, and my father came to the US about 1910. My father was born Erik Kjaer Monefeldt, and we never heard about the name Kjaer. I doubt, my father knew it. I think that name may have been his father's surname, but I have long since given up finding anything.

So here begins the story of the descendants of Rasmus Langebaek in USA. The eldest son, Carl, went alone in 1893, 20 years old. Then many years later - in the period from 1905 to 1910 - the remaining family followed, probably inspired by Carl.

IN 1905 Peter Frederik emigrated together with wife Marie and son Arne.

IN 1907 Anna Cristine emigrated with husband Jacob and their three children Gudrun, John and Kaj.

IN 1910 Julius emigrated with wife Mary and their two children Ella and Gudrun.

It seems that the three families lived in Copenhagen for some years before leaving.

Marie went to Copenhagen in 1903, where she gave birth to Erik at Frederiks Hospital. He was Christened Erik Kjaer Monefeldt. The father is 'unknown'. In 1904 Marie lives in Moellegade 27 in Copenhagen where she ran a laundry.

One can guess that Marie was unfortunate and wanted to hide her pregnancy. Probably Marie received a sum of money, which gave her the possibility to buy the laundry.

In 1905 the father and mother of Marie, Rasmus Langebaek and Sophie Eleonora, went to Copenhagen. It seems they sold the house in Viemose and moved into an apartment on Kastelsvej 11. Marie and her son moves in with them. Also, the brother of Marie, Niels Julius, who had been living on Blegdamsvej 108, moved to live with them for a short while.

In September 1906 former cabinet maker Rasmus Daniel Monefeldt died and was buried in Bispebjerg cemetery. In the years 1907, 1908 and 1909 Sofie is mentioned in Dictionary of Copenhagen as a widow living at Kastelsvej 11, and in 1910 she went together with Marie and Erik ( now 6 years ) to USA.

As it can be seen on table 7., this part of family is quite strong in both age and fertility.

JACOB was a painter, painting ornate decorations on coaches back in Denmark. After moving from Copenhagen to Racine he painted houses. His father made artificial limbs. He had 7 brothers and 1 sister. The last six months of his life he lived with his daughter, Goody.

ANNA CHRISTINE was in 7th class at School in Kalvehave in 1887. It was the highest grade the school had at that time. As the only pupil in the class there was a remark that she had a profession - as herdsman. At exam in 1887 she had the second best rating in the class.

At age of 14, Anna left from home to be a housekeeper. She lived with a wealthy family doing the cooking and housekeeping. Her father made her a chest for her belongings. The chest is now by her grandson Richard Peter Samuelson. In 1907 Jacob and Christine emigrated together with the three children to America on the ship 'Hellig Olav' ( means Holy Olav ). They settled down in Racine to live with Christines brother Fred, who worked as an attendant in the Danish Lutheran Church.

After the separation Christine rented two apartment buildings in Chicago, 1620 - 24 Humbolt Blvd., and let out rooms and apartments. After Christine remarried the buildings were managed by the daughter Goody and her husband Einar. Goody and Einar moved to California in 1945, followed by Christine and Bert in 1946. Thereafter the buildings were managed by sister of Christine, Marie, and her husband, Louis Silver, who at this time had returned from Alabama.

Christine and her daughter, Goody, lived close by each other in Burbank from 1945 until Christine's death in 1971. Much of the knowledge we have gained has come from things that Christine shared with Goody. Goody kept everything and was very careful to preserve as much information as she could by putting notes on the back of plates, pictures and other family treasures. ( note from Dick and Kay )

GUDRIN legally changed her name to Gertrude when she came to America. She was called Goody most of her adult life. When she was 13 her family moved to Chicago. Goody was very helpful to her mother during these times. She studied bookkeeping at evening school and got a job as bookkeeper / receptionist with the Arbuckle Bros. She first met Einer in 1912 when the families moved next door to one another.

Goody and Einer managed the Danish Glee Club in Chicago from 1935 to 1940. In 1943 they moved to California. After Einer's death in 1972 she continued living in the house at 701 N. She died in a very weakened condition at age 95 - no serious problems, just old age.

EINER was the son of Hans Peter Samuelson and Agnes Magda Butzkowsky. Both parents were born in Denmark, Hans Peter in Draaby parish and Agnes in Copenhagen. Hans was one of seven children. Probably emigrated as a young man. Agnes was an only child, probably adopted. Her parents emigrated in 1887 when Agnes was 9 years old. Einer graduated from Lane Technical High School in Chicago. He studied architecture for a time and during the depression worked as a brickmason, milkman, and managed a flowershop. After moving to California in 1943 he was employed at Warner Bros. STATEMENT BY BENT MONEFELDT

In 1946 and 1947 I was a young man of 17-18 years, apprenticed as a grocer and attended trade school in the evenings. At that time I lived in Odense - at Funen, Denmark. One day one of my friends said, that, he had been in Tivoli in Copenhagen, and here he had met a pretty girl with the name Gloria Monefeldt. She was from America and was on a family visit in Denmark.

He told her about his friend in Odense with the same name - Monefeldt. However Gloria said that they only had family in Helsingor.

Other than remembering the report, I did nothing about it. At that time I had no interest in - hadn't even thought about - investigating the family. This interest came some years later in the mid 50's.

The obvious way of starting genealogy is by interviewing the older family members. The problem was, that there were only a few, and I did not know them. I knew that my grandfathers brother had been living in Nakskov, and that there were some children, among others Luther Monefeldt. Together with my brother I made an 'expedition' to Nakskov. We went without forewarning to Luther Monefeldt and were warmly welcomed.

Luther could tell about the family on Lolland, but could not give a more complete family story. One story Luther told made perhaps the problem even bigger, but not less interesting:

'About 1900 my father Leonhard had a visit from Peter Gustav Monefeldt, who lived with us for a long period. I don't know who he was except that he was related to my father. Peter Gustav was a juggler and his wife performed as an escapeartist 'DET BARE BRACH' They gave performances around Lolland and Leonhard transported them with his horse and wagon.'

Luther also had a letter with following content:

Copenhagen March 28, 1928

Mr. Luther Monefeldt
The cooperative barbersalon
Nakskov

Mr. Monefeldt,
As I have heard, that there could be a Monefeldt in Nakskov, I would write and ask about this. I'm a Monefeldt too and we could be related. My father was an artist, as I am and had the name Peter Gustav Monefeldt, born here in Denmark. His own father died young. I'm writing to you because there should be a grant in Drammen in Norway that you could benefit from. There is no cost in informing you about this.
Hope to hear from you soon as I'm leaving for Finland Saturday noon at 12 o'clock.

Kind regards, Jens Monefeldt
Halmtorvet 12
Copenhagen

Luther, who after this had a visit from Jens, said:

'Jens told me they were 12 children. Jens Monefeldt's wife is from Wien ( Austria ), but her mother is married to barber Rose, Nytorv 3, Copenhagen. If you write to Rose, you'll get Jens's address there and can seek further information on the family.'

The subject lay passive until the mid 60's. I had moved to Aarhus in Jutland with my family, but via my job I was often in Copenhagen. This gave me an opportunity to seek information in the archives. A picture of the family began to show up and the question of Peter Gustav and his son Jens was taken up again.

I found barber Rose who was no longer active but acting as master of the barber association in Copenhagen.

In a telephone conversation with Rose on the 16th of January 1967 he said, that on the same day he received a letter from Jens. He said that Jens now was 60 years old. His wife - Misse - who was foster-daughter of M. Rose, died a year ago. Jens married again to a Danish lady. Jens . Jens still had a contract for some month ( USA ), but said that he would retire after this. He and his wife did talk about settling down in Denmark.

Furthermore Rose said, that Jens had a sister in Copenhagen, and gave the name and address:

Karen Camilla Jensen,
Scharlingsvej 14, Valby,

I contacted Camilla by phone, and was permitted to visit her. Camilla was able to give some information about her brothers and sisters, as well as her mother and father, but could not tell who Peter Gustav's father was or his name.

Camilla's father, Peter Gustav, who died when Camilla was 10 years old, told her, that his father was dead when he was a little boy. Officially it was said in the family that he had gone to America, but the truth is that he hung himself.

Camilla could also remember that her father told her that the original Monefeldts in Denmark were two brothers Monefeldt, who came to Denmark as poor barons.

Camilla, Jens and another sister - Gustava - were acrobats ( on bikes etc. ). Camilla showed me many pictures from their performances. When engaged in Svendborg, Camilla met waiter Thorkild Jensen, whom she later married.

Together with the company was a negro - Sam - who later married the sister, Gustava. Jens and his wife, Misse, together with Sam and the sister, went to South America. They heard from Sam later, but not from the sister.

Jens and his wife got their American citizenship in 1940, they have a daughter, Gloria, who is married and have four children. Jens, as well as his wife and the daughter Gloria ( the pretty girl from Tivoli in Copenhagen ) have been in Denmark after World War II.

Some time after this visit by Camilla, I visited another relative, Volmer Monefeldt, Copenhagen. He had a paper on which his grandfather, Daniel Monefeldt, had made notes about his children's birthdays and the like.

On this I found some names of which I knew a lot, but also a JENS PETER DANIELSEN, born February 20, 1847 whom I did not know. Volmer couldn't remember having heard of him and could not tell me about him.

Could this be the father of Peter Gustav ? The church book confirmed the birth, but no more.

I did not inform Camilla about this. Fortunately Camilla in a Christmasletter in 1969, informed me, that she was in possession of more information about the family - among other things about her grandfather Jens Peter Danielsen Monefeldt. The information was in a little notebook from the brother Jens. I was permitted to copy this. Camilla told more interesting things about the family. Her father Peter Gustav went to Norway about 1900-1902. The family lived in Horg by Tronhjem during the winter, but travelled around with their show. It seems Peter Gustav had a tent - circus or artist tent. Camilla talked about her father as an entertainer, with a lot of talents and certainly 'a man'about-town'.

His little book of relatives was neatly written. Beside information about the family, it also contained notes about money, addresses, etc., and showed sense of order with personal private matters.

It was not possible to get any more information from Camilla, who suffered from bad nerves. At a later visit Camilla had moved to a nursing home, but her husband Thorkil Jensen told, that the wife of Peter Gustav - Gunna - and her sister Karen came from Kragelund by Silkeborg in Jutland. He showed me some pictures, showing the family on a visit there. This was after they moved to Norway. Peter Gustav met his wife in Sweden, but they settled down in Norway where the children were born.

From the notes of Peter Gustav it is seen that he was married to Karen Johanne Andrea Hansen, but according to Camilla he was married to the sister of Karen, Gunna. They were married Catholic and could not get a divorce. Karen and Peter Gustav lived together in common-law marriage. Peter Gustav's formal wife, Gunna, lived together with a Swede, to whom she married after the death of Peter Gustav.

Karen and Peter Gustav had 11 children, all born in Norway. The first child was according to the notes of Peter Gustav born in Holmestrand, south of Drammen. The three first born stayed with the parents, two died as babies, and the remaining were put out for adoption.

When Peter Gustav died in 1918, the three homeliving children were at age 10 to 15 years. They followed their father's example and became entertainers. Jens was the most succesful and performed as cycleartiste at an international level. Pictures - that I'm not in the possess ion of - show him balancing on a 4 to 6 meter high bicycle with his wife Misse held in the arm over his head. They used the names Maysy and Brach.

In the summer of 1972 my wife and I went with our children on vacation to Norway. We lived in a hut by the Oslo-inlet, and by coincidence the farmer we rented the hut from knew a IVAR CONRAD LEONHARD MONEFELDT SOBSTAD.

This led to an invitation, and we had a wonderful day together with Ivar and his wife Laura, their daughter Karin - home because of this occasion - and her little daughter Gro.

Ivar Monefeldt, who was adopted as little child never had seen any of his biological family except for some sisters. Unfortunately Ivar became ill shortly afterward from a brain tumor and the contact stopped.

*) Gunna and Peter Gustav were married Catholic and could not get divorce. Gunna lived together with butcher Charles Olsson, Linköbing, Sweden. They were married after Peter Gustav was dead.

Karen and Peter Gustav lived like married people, but without actually being married. The two sisters Gunna and Karen were daughters of Hans Kristian Sorensen and Mette Marie Jensen, Haarup, Skanderborg county ( in Jutland, Denmark ). in the years 1902-1911.

It is supposed that Peter Gustav, who was 10 years old when his father died, grew up in a family, where he developed the special talent that later became his way of living.

The children of Karen and Peter Gustav Monefeldt are described in the following.....

Report by Luther Monefeldt - 1989 (summary):

As a child I lived in Tilegade, where all 3 children grew up. Later we moved tonumber 37 and in the fall of 1908 to Nordenkirke 17, where we lived until the beginning of 1922. My father bought the house in Fruegade. Unfortunately, he was not very happy here, and died in February 1923.

I remember that my father said, that his mother Anna Magdalena was a fisherwoman on Gammel Strand ( selling fish by the channel in Copenhagen ), and his father was a fisherman, but his mother died early. After this the children were placed in other homes - my father by a manufacturer of cotton wool.

After my father's confirmation he served an apprenticeship as blacksmith in Rodby, and this happened this way; In a house where the fosterparents lived, there was a maid whose father was a blacksmith. She asked him if he would like to be a blacksmith. If so she would write her father about an apprenticeship, and this way Leonhard went to Lolland ( Rodby is situated on the Danish island Lolland ).

He practiced as a blacksmith and mechanic for many years. He was surely a clever craftsman. A colleague from 'Tuxen and Hammerich', where he worked for 20 years, has said that my father got the most demanding jobs, but also got the best payment.

Leonhard later settled down as a canvasser and delivered magazines to customers in Nakskov. Furthermore he sold furniture by catalogue, and silver and gold.

Even at age 73 years, I still remember my childhood, but I'm also the youngest of three children, so when I grew up my parents economic situation was quite well established, considering the ble situations for a workman at that time.

I remember my father as a quiet man, who did not say much. If I did things we were not allowed to, it was always my mother who had to punish us. Later on I also remembered the sentence 'He who spares the rod spoils the child'.

Report by Monna Monefeldt - grandchild og Leonhard - 1967 ( summary ):

Grandmother and -father began their lives in Tilegade in Nakskov. There my father Olaf Andreas Martin, Marie and Luther were born. Then they moved to Nordenkirke 17, which today has been listed for preservation. At my grandmother and -father there was a lot of cake, chocolate and fruit juice, and then they played cards. When I was little, my grandfather took me on his arm and danced to the Gramophone. Grandmother and -father had a big apartment, with a diningroom, the mans room and sittingroom, a big kitchen, and a large loft with a sandpit for us to play with.

Christmas evening was always a special adventurelike. We got a lot of presents, dolls, horses and wagons. Much of it made by father and mother, and they were beautiful things. When I grew up I realized that my grandparents were quite wealthy. For instance they had one box with 1.5 kilo goodies, other boxes, and oranges. In the diningroom under the sofa there was a box with apples. These were good times.

I lived with my parents, brothers and sisters in Hollandergade, but we did not like the place and moved to Bredgade. Mother was clever at doing anything and she was strict about our school. We had a good home with many visitors - nearly every Saturday in the summer. Then we spent the time in the summer-house and the adults had coffee, cake, a beer and father a big cigar.

Reports about Leonhard tell he and his little brother FERDINAND, after death of the mother were fostered by a manufacturer of cotton wool.

In the census from 1870 one can read, that Leonhard ( 10 years ) and Ferdinand ( 7 years ) lives with their father Andreas ( 48 years ) in Stormgade 1, the back building, second floor. Their little sister was not registered and was supposed to have been placed in a foster home.

Stormgade 1 is the location of the Danish National Museum today, right behind the Castle of Christiansborg ( House of Parliament ). The father of Ferdinand, who was a fisherman, probably worked by the Frederiksholm Channel, which surrounds the castle.

It is told that Ferdinand was in apprenticeship to the Royal Smithy, which according to old maps was situated by the Castle of Christiansborg close to the Royal stables and the riding ground.

Some photographs from a photographer in Nyborg, showed that Ferdinand and his fiance, Emilie has served for some while on the island of Funen. He as a blacksmith and she probably as a maid. This was about 1880 to 1885.

Emilie gave birth to their first child in 1888, and they were married 1889 in Copenhagen. About this time Ferdinand established his own business as a blacksmith. It was situated on Vester Faelledvej 6, Copenhagen V, and he had 18 employees.

In 1898 the six oldest children were photographed by a photographer on Vestergade - they wore identical clothes, which tells us that the economic conditions must have been good. It is told that when there were visitors in the home, it was forbidden for the children to stay in the diningroom. Therefore they hid themselves under the table to follow the conversation of the adults. Furthermore they had a tradition of going on picnics to the big forest 'Dyrehaven' north of Copenhagen.

By 1906 Ferdinand and Emilie had 8 children. About the same time Ferdinand was kicked by a horse, which caused his early death in 1907. The oldest girl, Inger, had probably been on duty as a maid somewhere in Copenhagen at this time.

The next two, Laura and Martha, went to Funen to serve at manors there. Shortly after followed Thyra, born 1894, after her confirmation and school. The four youngest children stayed with their mother.

The four oldest girls broke contact with the mother. This was because Emilie, as a widow quite quickly was pregnant again ( not registered ), and she spent all the money Ferdinand had left her very quickly.

After a short time Emilie bought a greengrocer shop. The girls on Funen succeeded in getting their little sister Oda over to them, but it was not successfull and she went back to Copenhagen after a short while.

The oldest children - the girls - respected their father highly, and disagreed bitterly over the mothers actions after his death. Ferdinand was buried at Vestre Cemetery. The oldest daughter Inger always had a piece of the box-hedge on the grave laying beside a portrai of the father in her home. The mother Emilie died in 1927 and was buried from the Sundby Crematorium.

BENT MONEFELDT ( Bent ) lived the first three years with his aunt Laura and uncle Alfred in Ryslinge. Thereafter he went home to his mother and family now living in Odense. Bent was in a nursery in the daytime until starting school at age 6 years. Twelve years old Bent became a delivery boy for a grocer. After 8 years of school ending March 31, 1943 Bent started as an apprentice by the same grocer. Finished his education in 1947. Hereafter Bent worked some years as shop assistant, took training as a sign writer and ended with a short education as decorator.

After employment in some larger shops as a decorator Bent was hired by the Unilever company Sunlight. First as traveling decorator and from 1953 as a salesman. In 1959 the family moved from Odense to Aarhus, where Bent was advertising consultant at the grocer chain SPAR, some months later he was promoted to manager of advertising, but left for the company of canned foods JAKA, also in Aarhus. After one year as sub-manager promoted to sales manager for the Danish market. After serving 9 years in this position, Bent moved back to the centralized chain office 'Kaedecentralen' where he formerly was advertising manager. He was now marketingmanager for the chains CENTRA and METRO. This only lasted for one and a half years, when the family moved to Faaborg, Funen, where Bent got the new position as market manager for Faaborg Middagsretter - canned and frozen foods.

After 6 years on this post came an offer to become director of sales in the wholesale company now known as DAGROFA in Helsingør, and the family moved to Hornbæk. This only lasted two years as Bent was offered the position as Managing director of DANSK DYBFROST A/S ( frozen foods ) in Copenhagen 50 kilometers from Hornbæk.

While engaged in Dansk Dybfrost Bent was a member of the organisation 'Dybfrostraadet' ( industry organization within frozen foods ), most of the time as vice chairman.

At age 10 years Bent was a member of the scout organization KFUM, which later was changed to FDF ( Free Boys Scout movement ), and was active until moving to Aarhus at age 30. Bent was then married to Kirsten and the two first children were born. From the beginning in Aarhus time was used for house, garden, family and children, and work. Mostly the last, but there was also time to investigate genealogy. Organization engagement was established again through membership of the Masonic Lodge 'Janus Vesta' belonging to The Guild of Freemasons, M.M. degree in 1970 and for more years secretary of the lodge and member of the board for the lodge.

KIRSTEN FOG graduated from school and was trained as a clerk at Odense Kamgarnsspinderi ( wool and cotton yarn ).
